BUSINESS LAW 2

---

LARGE GROUP 1 Student Guide

---

Accounts

Context

In your Business Law 1 Module, you learned about different types of businesses and how those businesses are run and managed. In this module, you will consider the financial aspects of running a business.

In order fully to understand a business, it is necessary to understand its accounts. Accounts are not the preserve of accountants and financial advisors. Anyone who wants to run a business, advise a business, invest in a business or, in some cases, even work in a business needs to understand how that business functions financially. The starting point for understanding the finances of a business is its accounts.

In this Large Group you will look at how accounts are compiled from the accounting records of the business, how the accounts are presented and how they can be interpreted in order to make value judgements about the financial state of the business. You will then look at some of the accounting requirements which are placed on companies as part of their disclosure obligations.

Outcomes

By the end of this Large Group you should be able to:

1. Appreciate the importance of business finance in corporate governance.
2. Understand how final accounts are compiled from basic accounting data.
3. Explain the purpose and nature of final accounts.
4. Explain the key regulatory requirements for company accounts.
