

Chapter 29:

Chapter Thesis	With the ending of the Great War, or World War I, many had hoped that the world would return to a pre-war era. However, there were many factors that would not contribute to this activity. The first of which would be Germany once again causing the war as it was restored from economic distress. The leadership of Nazi Leader Adolf Hitler would be instrumental to the cause of World War II in which his aggressive military campaign and neglect from the Alliance would result in Germany once again looking for conquest. Another major factor that occurred in between World War I and World War II would be the economic depression in which stock markets around the world severely dropped, resulting in many countries that relied on the global exports to have drastically weakened financially. World War II was one of the most deadly wars in history in which heavily industrialized weapons, such as the atomic bomb, resulted in a large impact in the war.
Main Section I The Stalin Revolution	It all began after the ending of the Great War in which Stalin took power. He would issue something known as a Five-Year Plan in order to accelerate the industrialization of Germany. However, in order to accommodate for this huge investment, Stalin required the use of agricultural techniques in order to provide nourishment. He would incorporate the farms in a collective system in which food supplies were unable to be withheld within the farmers. Anyone who resisted would end up being sent to a labor camp or be executed. Although terrible, this method would place Germany as the third-highest industrial level.
Sub Section A Five-Year Plans	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> A. Joseph Stalin was a skillful administrator who was able to turn USSR to an industrial nation <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - The aim was to increase the power of the Communist Party B. His industrialization plan, known as the Five-Year Plans were very impactful to Germany <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - There had been a large impact to the environment as rivers were used for electricity, farmland replaced forests, and railroads cut the landscape.
Sub Section B Collectivization of Agriculture	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> A. In order to handle the large investments, Stalin implemented collectivization for farmers <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - This would make it so that all agriculture was controlled by the government B. Resistance was met with arrest, deportation, or execution <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Those unfit or untalented were sent to work in factories or leave their farms C. The plan would change with the addition of the Nazi party <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Many of the people due to the Stalinism were living with poor conditions
Sub Section C Terror and Opportunities	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> A. Throughout the 1930s, the Soviet people suffered from the forced industrialization <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Stalin ruled with fear, creating secret police in order to put down rebellion - His own generals would be psychologically inclined to confess for their "crimes" when Sergei Kirov was assassinated in December, 1934. B. Regardless, many still supported Stalin's regime <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - His efforts resulted in Germany becoming the third most industrialized nation - Their employment contrasted the effects of the depression in the West
