Managing Salinization Waltina Scheumann,2012-12-06 Salinization of soils is a major threat to irrigated agriculture and counteracts the targets of costly public infrastructure investments In this study salinization is regarded as the outcome of an institutional arrangement which impedes the effective implementation of well known and well established control measures be they technical managerial or economic In public irrigation systems neither the management units nor the farmers are offered any incentives towards the control of high groundwater levels and salinization if the management units are embedded in a highly centralized non market institutional setting The author answers the question under which conditions management units and irrigators are active in halting and reversing the process of salinization Flood Issues in Contemporary Water Management J. Marsalek,W. Ed Watt,Evzen Zeman,Friedhelm Sieker,2012-12-06 In 1997 disastrous flooding running through the Czech Republic Poland Germany took the lives of a great number of people and caused economic damage estimated in tens of billions of dollars Flooding of the Yangtze river in 1998 killed more than 3000 people dislocated 230 million souls and caused direct damage of more than 45 billion Both the general public and the experts are asking what we can learn from these recent events to reduce loss of life and flood damage The 1997 floods were dealt with by experts from the Czech Republic Poland and Germany who presented timely reports on combatting floods both success stories and shortcomings This experience is further extended by reports from experts drawn from 13 other countries developing a broad overview of flood risk management covering the ecosystem approach to flood management including socioeconomic issues flood impacts on water quality human health and natural ecosystems Contact-impact Problems.
