Reproduction/Developmental Biology Holt Rinehart & Winston,Holt, Rinehart and Winston Staff,2004 LGBTQ+ Family-Making, Reproductive Ethics, and the (Re)Shaping of Family Values Amanda Roth,2025-12-29 This book examines the ethical issues surrounding assisted reproductive technologies and queer family making practices By focusing on LGBTQ people and experiences in relation to procreative ethics this book challenges dominant approaches and views in philosophical bioethics In Part 1 of this book the author introduces the idea of queer epistemic privilege regarding issues of family and reproduction and applies this notion to the bioethical debates around donor conception In Part 2 the author problematizes the typical philosophical conception of the debate over donor anonymity by centering queer perspectives and experiences Drawing on social science research she makes the case for queer difference in how donor conception is practiced and then employs this notion to show why the dominant ethical views opposing donor anonymity fail Whereas most scholars view this issue as an issue of pure procreative parental ethics this book instead employs a queer perspective to draw out an alternative framing of the conflict one between procreative parental ethics and the moral responsibility to resist unjust social systems and norms e g bionormativity This broader framing offers a limited defense of some uses of anonymous donor

gametes that is tied directly to the nature of ongoing LGBTQ family marginalization Finally in Part 3 the author draws attention to two aspects of donor conception that are common in the queer community but receive virtually no attention in the bioethical literature known donation and donor sibling contact relationships and shows what we miss philosophically when these queer practices are erased from the bioethical discussions around donor conception LGBTQ Family Making Reproductive Ethics and the Re Shaping of Family Values is an essential resource for researchers or advanced students working in Moral Philosophy especially Reproductive Ethics Feminist Philosophy and LGBTQ Philosophy Bioethics and Gender Sexuality and Women s Studies
