STARTING POINT

Chapter 1 – Papa and Mama

- Father – Harald Dahl, Norwegian – no left arm
- Father's brother – Oscar
- The brothers ran away to France
- Uncle Oscar became successful – fishing trawlers and a canning factory
- Harald Dahl – with partner Aadnesen – became shipping brokers (suppliers to big ships) – as coal was the most important thing they supplied they set up business in a coaling port – Cardiff, South Wales, U.K.
- Harald married Marie – 2 children and then Marie died
- Harald went back to Norway to find a new wife – married Sofie Magdalene Hesselberg – 4 children – girl, girl, boy (Roald), girl
- They moved to a big house in Radyr, 8 miles outside of Cardiff
- Harald was a clever businessman, he was a good gardener and wood carver. He wrote detailed dairies of events in English (although Norwegian was his first language).

Chapter 2 Kindergarten 1922-23, age 6-7

- When Roald was 3 his sister died from appendicitis, she was 7. This was the age that Roald's daughter Olivia died many years later.
- Roald's father was very upset about the death of his daughter, and he died of pneumonia shortly after.
- Roald's mother had no family in Wales to help her, all her family lived in Norway. She was alone with 5 children, and another one on the way. However she refused to return to Norway. Harald Dahl had always wanted his children to be educated in English schools, which he believed to be superior. After all, it had enabled a small island of people to become a great empire, and produce some of the world's greatest literature.
- The family moved to a smaller house called Cumberland Lodge in Llandaff, a few miles away.
- Roald went to his first school – a kindergarten called Elmtree House, run by 2 sisters Mrs Corfield and Miss Tucker.

LLANDAFF CATHEDRAL SCHOOL 1923-5 (age 7-9)

Chapter 3 - The Bicycle and the Sweet Shop

- Roald remembers 2 things clearly:
- First, he was really impressed by a 12 year old boy who rode by, pedaling backwards, with his arms folded across his chest – Roald was in awe.
- Second, was his memory of a sweet shop that he passed on the way to and from school. His favorite sweets were Sherbet Suckers and Liquorice Bootlaces.
- Roald's friend Thwaites told him that his father (a doctor) had told him never to eat Liquorice Bootlaces as they were made from rat's blood and made you look like a rat!

James & the Giant Peach Lit Link Gr. 4-6 , James discovers some very strange friends living inside the giant peach Together they begin a series of adventures as passengers in the giant peach Novel by Roald Dahl Reproducible chapter questions plus comprehension questions a story summary author biography creative and cross curricular activities complete with answer key De-constructing Dahl Laura Viñas Valle,2016-01-14 This is the first single authored monograph on Roald Dahl since 1994 Remarkably in spite of Dahl s commercial success and the divided opinions he generates very little scholarly work on the author has been produced In the light of sociocultural constructivist theory De constructing Dahl focuses on the critical context texts and paratexts that make up the packaging of Dahl It offers the first thorough overview of the criticism and the language employed to discuss Dahl since the 1970s the difficulties that using such language entails and how it still permeates current criticism It delves into the relationship between Dahl s children s and adult fiction by drawing comparisons and contrasts and exploring the common traits and patterns that bring his whole work together It also examines how Dahl constructed himself as a children s writer how his publishing house and allies contribute to mediating and sustaining the Dahl public persona the ways that marketing strategies are responsible for the identity of his books and how editorial decisions about the age range and therefore how the classification of a manuscript as a book for children or for adults constructs particular ideas of what children s literature is and what is considered appropriate or unsuitable for children to read Charlie & the Chocolate Factory Lit Link Gr. 4-6 Melanie Komar, The gates of Willy Wonka s chocolate factory are being opened for five lucky contest winners Remarkably poor little Charlie Bucket is one of the children to visit Novel by Ronald Dahl Reproducible chapter questions plus comprehension questions a story summary author biography creative and cross curricular activities complete with answer key Gender-Stereotyping in Children's Literature. A Case Study on the children's novel "Matilda" by Roald Dahl Karolin Liebig,2016-05-23 Seminar paper from the year 2015 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Literature grade 3 0 University of Erfurt Anglistik Amerikanistik course Language and Gender language English abstract This study examines the language use towards male and female characters in the children s novel Matilda written by Roald Dahl The fact of an uneven depiction of female and male characters in children s literature which is proved in many studies is the base of this analysis With this work I examine if Dahl uses gender stereotyped language in his popular novel as well The selection of this book has a personal background When I was an Au pair in Australia an audiobook with all stories of Roald Dahl fell into my hands The owner a boy said I should definitely listen to those because they are awesome For this kind of study I thought Matilda might be interesting because the protagonist is a girl The main emphasis of the analysis is put on the number of characters and their occupation the used adjectives to describe the characters and the verbs describing the characters actions That leads to the following hypotheses Firstly female characters are underrepresented in extensive roles secondly male characters are depicted in more different occupations than female characters thirdly different adjectives are used to describe female and male characters and finally female characters are portrayed predominantly in gender stereotyped activities The overall interest of this work is if the characters in this children s novel are mainly described in a gender stereotyped way My work is structured as follows I will provide a rough introduction in Gender studies and especially in the field of Gender and Language in the first chapter Further I point out the central matters of the research in Gender and Children s literature and introduce a few studies that support my own examination and are the basis for the hypotheses The first part in the second chapter gives an introduction to the sample book as well as the author The second point describes the procedure of the research the consistence of the data and how it is collected How the data is arranged for the analysis is to be found in the third part of chapter two The third chapter starts with the analysis of the occurring characters and their occupations followed by an analysis of the adjectives to find out if the author uses gender stereotyped words to describe female and male characters In the fourth part of this chapter the verbs are examined for gender stereotyping female characters The conclusion sums up the work and gives a prospect of further questions

The Second Sexism David Benatar,2012-05-15 While the manifestation of sexism against women is widely acknowledged few people take seriously the idea that males are also the victims of many and quite serious forms of sex discrimination So unrecognized is this form of sexism that the mere mention of it will be laughable to some Yet women are typically exempt from military conscription even where men are forced into battle and risk injury emotional repercussions and death Males are more often victims of violent crime as well as of legalized violence such as corporal punishment Sexual assault of males is often taken less seriously Fathers are less likely to win custody of their children following divorce In this book philosophy professor David Benatar provides details of these and other examples of what he calls the second sexism He discusses what sexism is responds to the objections of those who would deny that there is a second sexism and shows how ignorance of or flippancy about discrimination against males undermines the fight against sex discrimination more generally provide child readers with entertainment but also the building blocks of their identities linguistic choices construct representations of how to be a girl or how to be a boy often in binary mutually exclusive terms Hunt s critical corpus linguistic approach uncovers patterns of representation beyond the fiction author s awareness which reveal their assumptions about how girls and women behave or should behave or what boys and men do or should do Chapters cover the gendered patterns found in how characters speak how they express emotion and how they act on the world as well as those characters who contradict these patterns and perform their genders in different ways The detailed analysis and its implications will be relevant to teachers of literature both at school and at university level media researchers lecturers and students of linguistics or gender studies and anyone interested in child development and the fiction written for children
