Innovative Investigations of Language in Autism Spectrum Disorder Letitia Naigles, 2016-11-07 In recent decades a growing number of children have been diagnosed with autism spectrum disorder ASD a condition characterized by among other features social interaction deficits and language impairment Yet the precise nature of the disorder s impact on language development is not well understood in part because of the language variability among children across the autism spectrum The contributors to this volume experts in fields ranging from communication disorders to developmental and clinical psychology to linguistics use innovative techniques to address two broad questions Is the variability of language development and use in children with ASD a function of the language such that some linguistic domains are more vulnerable to ASD than others Or is the variability a function of the individual such that some characteristics predispose those with ASD to have varying levels of difficulty with language development and use Contributors investigate these questions across linguistic levels from lexical semantics and single clause syntax to computationally complex phonology and the syntax pragmatics interface Authors address both spoken and written domains within the wider context of language acquisition This timely and broadly accessible volume will be of interest to a broad range of specialists including linguists psychologists sociologists behavioral neurologists and cognitive neuroscientists

Language Dominance in Bilinguals Carmen Silva-Corvalán, Jeanine Treffers-Daller, 2015-12-18 With contributions from leading scholars of bilingualism Language Dominance in Bilinguals is the first publication to survey different approaches to language dominance along with suggested avenues for further research It illustrates how a critical approach to the notion of language dominance as well as its operationalization and measurement can provide new insights into this burgeoning area of research Drawing on adult and child data from a variety of language pairs the chapters discuss how language dominance is to be conceptualized and distinguished from such related constructs as language proficiency and language competence This volume is the first of its kind to present an overview of different approaches to language dominance from across the theoretical spectrum as well as suggested avenues for further research Accessibly written Language Dominance in Bilinguals is a valuable new addition to the field and essential reading for students and scholars working in bilingualism speech therapy and education

Remote Online Language Assessment: Eliciting Discourse from Children and Adults Natalia Gagarina, Angel Chan, Wenchun Yang, 2024-08-20 Being able to collect valid data is crucial for empirical science disciplines such as linguistics developmental psycholinguistics clinical psycholinguistics and speech and hearing sciences In recent years there has been an increasing use of digital devices for remote language assessments such as online elicitation of language samples apps for eliciting expressive and productive lexical abilities and online questionnaires With the ongoing COVID 19 pandemic still affecting many lives globally there have been numerous disruptions of face to face in person language assessments leading many researchers to conduct their language assessments online Despite the necessity of remote language assessments and the convenience they may bring to both assessors and assessees the potential merits limits and problems of remote testing have not yet been systematically explored and understood This timely Research Topic seeks contributions that mobilize new evidence and or insightful and nuanced discussions to address questions such as can we control online testing so that it is as good as face to face in person testing and if so how Do we have evaluative evidence of such practices and if so how robust is the evidence What adaptations and concerns can and cannot be accommodated at the present time What opportunities are offered by recent technological advances Are there certain conditions in which online

testing works better or worse Last but not least how do differences between offline in person language assessments and online remote assessments affect the results of testing The current topic has two main foci the first deals with the assessment of conversational discourse in general and narrative discourse in particular in both children and young adults Communicative competence at the discourse level has been considered an essential and ecologically valid component in language assessments of children and adults for three key reasons 1 this competence is crucial for an individual s everyday functioning and academic and social life 2 it provides information about an individual s socio cognitive and linguistic abilities and 3 it is a versatile test of language skills at the levels of content form use and their integration The second focus is on comparing the results elicited via in person assessments and remote online assessments This Research Topic welcomes empirical articles discussing new evidence perspective and opinion papers on issues at the conceptual methodological interface and methods articles presenting approaches that can offer opportunities for remote testing of developmental discourse supported by recent technological advances Potential themes may include but are not limited to comparisons of remote versus in person testing modes using a within participants research design learner variables such as age gender language status monolingual multilingual and clinical status typically developing children and adults children and adults with clinical conditions such as developmental language disorder autism spectrum disorder which may affect the efficacy of remote testing linguistic variables such as the use of referential and relational devices and mental state language which may be subject to more variations when being assessed remotely new methods that offer opportunities for the remote testing of developmental and adult discourse supported by recent technological advances articles addressing the same research question within developmental narrative discourse but using different i e either online or offline research methods
