Piraino, 2021-02-27 Similarities between esoteric and mystical currents in different religious traditions have long interested scholars This book takes a new look at the relationship between such currents It advances a discussion that started with the search for religious essences archetypes and universals from William James to Eranos The universal categories that resulted from that search were later criticized as essentialist constructions and questioned by deconstructionists An alternative explanation was advanced by diffusionists that there were transfers between different traditions This book presents empirical case studies of such constructions and of transfers between Judaism Christianity and Islam in the premodern period and Judaism Christianity and Western esotericism in the modern period It shows that there were indeed transfers that can be clearly documented and that there were also indeed constructions often very imaginative It also shows that there were many cases that were neither transfers nor constructions but a mixture of the two Making Magic in Elizabethan England

Frank Klaassen, 2019-07-26 This volume presents editions of two fascinating anonymous and untitled manuscripts of magic produced in Elizabethan England the Antiphoner Notebook and the Boxgrove Manual Frank Klaassen uses these texts which he argues are representative of the overwhelming majority of magical practitioners to explain how magic changed during this period and why these developments were crucial to the formation of modern magic The Boxgrove Manual is a work of learned ritual magic that synthesizes material from Henry Cornelius Agrippa the Fourth Book of Occult Philosophy Heptameron and various medieval conjuring works The Antiphoner Notebook concerns the common magic of treasure hunting healing and protection blending medieval conjuring and charm literature with materials drawn from Reginald Scot's famous anti magic work Discoverie of Witchcraft Klaassen painstakingly traces how the scribes who created these two manuscripts adapted and transformed their original sources In so doing he demonstrates the varied and subtle ways in which the Renaissance the Reformation new currents in science the birth of printing and vernacularization changed the practice of magic Illuminating the processes by which two sixteenth century English scribes went about making a book of magic this volume provides insight into the wider intellectual culture surrounding the practice of magic in the early modern period

Rewriting Magic Claire Fanger, 2015-06-18 In Rewriting Magic Claire Fanger explores a fourteenth century text called The Flowers of Heavenly Teaching Written by a Benedictine monk named John of Morigny the work all but disappeared from the historical record and it is only now coming to light again in multiple versions and copies While John's book largely comprises an extended set of prayers for gaining knowledge The Flowers of Heavenly Teaching is unusual among prayer books of its time because it includes a visionary autobiography with intimate information about the book's inspiration and composition Through the window of this record we witness how John reconstructs and reconsecrates a condemned liturgy for knowledge acquisition the ars notoria of Solomon John's work was the subject of intense criticism and public scandal and his book was burned as heretical in 1323 The trauma of these experiences left its imprint on the book but in unexpected and sometimes baffling ways Fanger decodes this imprint even as she relays the narrative of how she learned to understand it In engaging prose she explores the twin processes of knowledge acquisition in John s visionary autobiography and her own work of discovery as she reconstructed the background to his extraordinary book Fanger s approach to her subject exemplifies innovative historical inquiry research and methodology Part theology part historical anthropology part biblio-memoir Rewriting Magic relates a story that will have deep implications for the study of medieval life monasticism prayer magic and religion Magic, Ritual, and Witchcraft, 2006 Magic in Medieval Romance Michelle Sweeney, 2000 This book examines the roles of magic in medieval romance Magic s crucial function in the romances may be established by studying the diverse works of Chr tien de Troyes the Lais of Marie de France the romances of Sir Tristrem Syr Launfal Ywain Gawain and Chaucer s The Franklin s Tale Romance authors used magical trials to explore a character moral status and position on issues important to the community such as when to maintain loyalty to a king or to a lover Romance authors were able to encourage the exploration of human motivation by using magic to create or expose a character morally ambiguous situation This technique enabled a broader discussion of social issues than would have been allowed in situations constrained by the boundaries of Christian dogmatism In order to understand the function of magic in medieval romance it is necessary to appreciate its function in the medieval world Magic is coupled to some of the most important works of the medieval age such as the theological texts of Augustine and Aquinas the histories of Geoffrey of Monmouth and Wace as well playing a significant role in medicine and the nascent studies of science Romance writers capitalised upon the associations between magic and these fields of study to create a more serious framework for their texts The romances could then operate beyond the level of simple entertainment and provide the interested audience with social commentary moral analysis and material for thought on a wide variety of issues Invoking Angels Claire Fanger, 2012 A collection of essays examining medieval and early modern texts aimed at performing magic or receiving illumination via the mediation of angels Includes discussion of Jewish Christian and Muslim texts Invoking Angels Claire Fanger, 2012-02-01 A collection of essays examining medieval and early modern texts aimed at performing magic or receiving illumination via the mediation of angels Includes discussion of Jewish Christian and Muslim texts Provided by publisher Studies and Texts - Pontifical Institute of Mediaeval Studies, 1955 Prayer, Magic, and the Stars in the Ancient and Late Antique World Scott B. late medieval Britain explores how medieval people responded to images stories beliefs and practices which were at odds with the normative world view from the heretical and subversive to the marvellous and exotic The Neale lecture by Jean Claude Schmitt examines why some unorthodox images were viewed as provocative and threatening and explores how successfully ecclesiastical authorities contained their impact The power of unorthodoxy to provoke wonder skepticism or disapproval provides an opportunity to view medieval culture from fresh perspectives The essays in this volume show that unorthodoxy was embedded in mainstream medieval culture from stories of fairies and witches which promoted orthodox moral values to the social conformity of practitioners of ritual magic This book provides a guide to understanding medieval unorthodoxy and the roles played by experience and imagination in medieval encounters with the unorthodox It will be essential reading for anyone interested in the exotic provocative and deviant in medieval culture

Thomas B. de Mayo,2007      Medicine and Religion in Late Medieval Culture Ralph Drayton,2001      The Body in Late Medieval and Early Modern Culture Darryll Grantley,Nina Taunton,2000 Taking as its chronological starting point the female body of late medieval devotional literature the volume moves on to a consideration of the representation of gendered bodies in later literature It then proceeds to examine sixteenth century occupational orderings of the male body in education the civil service and the army and involves explorations into a variety of rituals for the purification ordering and disciplining of the flesh It includes enquiries into the miraculous royal body demon bodies the virtual body of satire and ends the late seventeenth century with dramatic representations of the diseased body and the grotesque bodies of travellers tales as signifiers of racial difference It pushes forward post modern notions of the body as a site for competing discourses It provides new dimensions to fantasies rituals and regulations in narratives fictions of the body as identifications of forms of knowledge unique to the early modern period Each of the essays sheds new light on how these late medieval and early modern narratives function to produce specialized and discrete languages of the body that cannot be understood simply in terms say of religion philosophy or physiology but produce their own discrete forms of knowledge Thus the essays materially contribute to an understanding of the relationship between the body and spatial knowledge by giving new bearings on epistemologies built upon pre modern perceptions about bodily spaces and boundaries They address these issues by analysing forms of knowledge constructed through regulations of the body fantasies about extensions to the body and creations of bodily psychic intellectual and spiritual space The essays pose important questions about how these epistemologies offer different investments of knowledge into structures of power What constitutes these knowledges What are the politics of corporeal spaces In what forms of knowledge about spatial and bodily perceptions and practices are these early modern narratives embedded What ideologies shape and contain them The collection deliberately incorporates a period range which encompasses considerable cultural and ideological shifts that impact upon perceptions of the body The choice of essays in the volume recognizes both continuities and discontinuities between perceptions of the body in the medieval and early modern periods
