Construction Company System Manual

John Sherman Porter

Construction Company System Manual:

Manual of Construction Project Management Jüri Sutt, 2011-05-09 This construction client's manual is written in the form of a list of activities. It supports owners in the role of client by helping them make choices during the project development process. This increases control over cost, quality and duration at each stage. Activities within each main stage of the project development: preparation stage, procurement, design, preparation for construction, construction itself, handover, implementation are divided into phases, each requiring separate decision making. The phase begins with a list of direct previous decisions and continues with a list of executors, the goal of the present phase and a list of activities to be performed. And each phase ends with a list of expected results and a list of activities that these results release for action in the next phase. The sequence of these seven stages can be altered to help building owners manage risk by choosing and combining the timing of these stages. The tasks involved in project preparation described in the first chapter are for example often left by the owner for the designers to solve or sometimes even the contractors. The decisions relating to the choice of procurement schemes described in the second chapter can be made either at the preparation stage of project development as part of the prioritisation of aims or at the time of choosing the designer or at the stage of choosing construction contractors. Manual of Construction Project Management for owners/clients is for prospective owners who either operate as clients themselves or who use the services of professional construction management companies. The aim is to help both owners and their construction partners understand what to expect from each other. The manual describes activities at the level of detail required to choose the management task or method to make the decision. It is not bound to regulations of any specific country and a detailed glossary makes it an indispensable worldwide reference.

Activity Based Costing for Construction Companies Yong-Woo Kim, 2017-01-18 Activity Based Costing for Construction Companies provides guidelines on how overhead costs can be managed for using Activity Based Costing (ABC) providing gains in contractor competitiveness. Illustrated with a range of case studies and examples, it also presents a map that shows construction contractors how to implement ABC to calculate overhead costs accurately, identifying non or low value added operations which can then be improved.

Integrated Management Systems for Construction Alan Griffith, 2018-02-06 Integrated management systems (IMS) are an innovative way of handling the plethora of management functions and procedures that are applied throughout major construction projects. Contracting companies use management systems to shape and define the corporate arrangement of their business activities, translating these into operational procedures for application to the construction projects they undertake. The management of quality, environment and safety are at the forefront of systems evolution where the integration of these traditionally independent and dedicated standards based and process orientated systems can provide the potential to deliver greater organisational efficiency and effectiveness. This is the first textbook to cover each of the international standards for quality, safety and environment: ISO9000, ISO14001 and ISO18001 and to discuss integrating them. This book provides a detailed yet accessible
