

Since Castaneda knows only about the structure
 you and I know
 we're in a bit of a fix
 O'Neil, Florence

In this drawing Castaneda shows you how an artist thinks of the figure in terms of simple forms. He had thought to study the front and side planes and the top and down planes. He then drew a light from the left and from above. Then, if we may say so, he was to put shade on the side and down planes. If he had drawn perfectly like the figure and put the same light and shade on them, they would have looked very well.

Now to show how the figure, Castaneda will show his unlearned drawing. The line 141 shows the top of the figure.

There is another principle easily learned here. As the artist knows his position from one limb to the next, he notes the direction of each limb. In other words, he knows how to draw each limb as each.
