1. Introduction

C is a computer language based on the earlier language B [1]. The languages and their compilers differ in two major ways: C introduces the notion of types, and defines appropriate extra syntax and semantics; also, C on the PDP-11 is a true compiler, producing machine code where B produced interpretive code.

Most of the software for the UNIX time-sharing system [2] is written in C, as is the operating system itself. C is also available on the IBS 6070 computer at Murray Hill and on the IBM System/370 at Holmdel [3]. This paper is a manual only for the C language itself as implemented on the PDP-11. However, hints are given occasionally in the text of implementation-dependent features.

The UNIX Programmer's Manual [4] describes the library routines available to C programs under UNIX, and also the procedures for compiling programs under that system. "The GCOS C Library" by Lesk and Barros [5] describes routines available under that system as well as compilation procedures. Many of these routines, particularly the ones having to do with I/O, are also provided under UNIX. Finally, "Programming in C—A Tutorial," by B. W. Kernighan [6], is an excellent introduction to the language and the author's numerous introductions to offerings for implementation with
