ORGANS OF THE RESPIRATORY SYSTEM

TERMINOLOGY: RESPIRATORY SYSTEM

Respiration is the process of exchanging gases between the body and the environment. It involves the intake of oxygen and the removal of carbon dioxide. The respiratory system consists of the trachea, bronchi, bronchioles, and alveoli. The trachea is the windpipe, which leads from the larynx to the bronchi. The bronchi branch out into the lungs, where the bronchioles lead to the alveoli. The alveoli are small sacs where gas exchange occurs. Oxygen from the air enters the alveoli and then the bloodstream, while carbon dioxide from the bloodstream enters the alveoli and is then exhaled. The diaphragm is a muscle that contracts and relaxes to move air in and out of the lungs. The rib cage and intercostal muscles also play a role in breathing. The respiratory system is essential for life, as it provides the body with the oxygen it needs to function.
