

Apache Handlers

Apache Handlers

Overview

Apache handlers allow you to control what Apache will do with certain file types. When Apache sees a file, it has an action built in for that file type, and will perform that action. If you wish Apache to do a different action, you will need to make a handler to tell Apache to perform that action. For example, if you use a file type that requires a special service to run it, such as a movie file (.mpg) that you wish to run through a specific streaming server, you need to tell Apache to treat these files differently.

To access the Apache Handlers, click on the  icon above the words Apache Handlers on the main screen of your cPanel interface.

The Apache Handlers menu in the X2 theme appears as follows:
