Life at Sea Level

Stephen J. Pavlidis, 2011 Life at Sea Level is the latest work of one of America's finest travel guide authors. For nearly 20 years Stephen J. Pavlidis has been writing books about the Bahamas and the Caribbean Islands. He has written 14 guides covering virtually all the geography from south Florida to Trinidad and Tobago including many lesser known destinations such as Guatemala and Honduras. That writing was done aboard his 40 foot sailboat IV Play making careful notes, tedious maps and talking to the locals he met ashore. Most of Steve's books report facts about the regions and islands he visited. Finally in Life at Sea Level he tells some of the other stories of the very real things that happened during his island time and of the very real people he knew or historically researched. He tells us some things that are at once serendipitous and humorous. He also tells us some things that are not always comfortable even things some people would rather were not retold.
