

Test Yourself 3

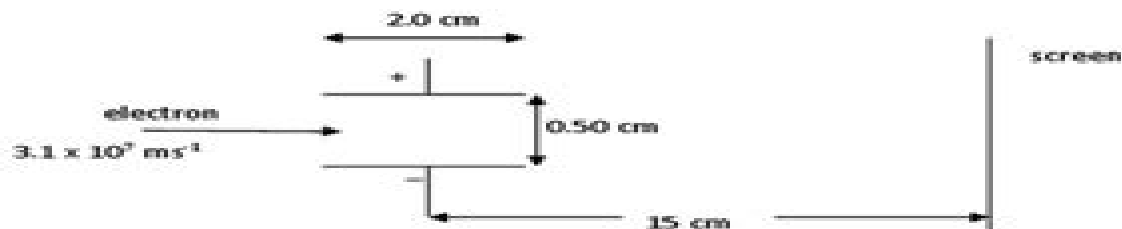

1.

A collimated beam containing electrons of different kinetic energy is directed at slit A at an angle of 60° to the plate, as shown. Find the

- initial kinetic energy of the electrons that just reach the plate RS.
 - initial velocity of the electrons that emerge from B.
- (mass of electron, $m = 9.11 \times 10^{-31} \text{ kg}$, charge of electron, $e = -1.6 \times 10^{-19} \text{ C}$)

2.

The potential difference across the two plates is 80V. The electron is accelerated by the potential difference between the cathode and anode to a speed of $3.1 \times 10^7 \text{ ms}^{-1}$ before entering the electric field at right angle. Calculate

- the accelerating potential difference between the cathode and the anode.
- the time taken for an electron to pass between the plates.
- the electric field strength between the plates.
- the force on an electron due to the electric field.
- the acceleration of the electron along the direction of the electric field.
- the speed of the electron at right angle to its original direction of motion as it leaves the region between the plates.
- the deflection of the electron on the screen.
