civil service was diminished by 27 percent Public Service in Tough Times gives voice to the people behind the balance sheets shedding light on the vicious cycle of understaffing burnout attrition and despair created by austerity policy Using survey data from thousands of public sector workers and carefully compiled statistics on spending and staffing editors Jesse Hajer Ian Hudson and Jennifer Keith demonstrate how cuts to government expenditures disproportionately benefit the wealthy and exacerbate poverty and inequality As the virtues of small government tax cuts and private sector investment continue to be the rallying cry of right leaning politicians worldwide this impeccably researched case study delivers a crushing critique of austerity and its consequences
