Following the Patient/Client Management module, patient care should be documented through the episode of care.

Initial Examination

History- The history of the examination is a collection of information which can be gathered through a patient/client or caregiver interview and includes a review of past and current medical and social information. The medical history may include pertinent medical diagnosis, surgical history, a list of current medications, information about previous clinical tests (X-rays, CT scan, etc) and a general review of current health status. The social history may include information on the patient / client's living environment, work status, and cultural preferences. In addition, it is recommended to include information on a patient / client's previous level of function.

Systems Review - A systems review is a necessary component of any initial examination. Information gathered from a systems review is imperative as it assists the physical therapist in determining conditions related and perhaps unrelated to the current chief complaint. In addition to a review of the various systems, this is a where information regarding a patient's / client's communication skills, cognitive abilities, and other important factors that might influence care or that is pertinent to function should be documented.

Tests and Measures - From the information gathered in the history and systems review, the physical therapist determines a hypothesis for a diagnosis. The physical therapist then determines which tests and measures are required to further prove (or disprove) the hypothesized diagnosis or diagnoses. In the documentation of tests and measures, a physical therapist should clearly identify the specific tests and measures, and any associated finding or outcome. In addition to traditional tests and measures (ROM, strength, balance, etc), more and more emphasis is placed on the importance of standardized tests and measures.

Evaluation - An evaluation is a thought process which leads to documentation of such terms as impairments, functional limitations, and disabilities. This evaluation process is a synthesis of all of the data and findings gathered from the examination and should guide the physical therapist to a diagnosis and prognosis for each patient / client. The documentation of an evaluation can use formats such as a problem list or a statement of assessment with key factors (e.g., cognitive factors, co- morbidities, social support) influencing the patient/client status.

Diagnosis - The diagnosis determined by the physical therapist after the evaluation process should be made at the impairment and functional limitation levels. It should identify the impact of a condition on function at the level of the system and the level of the whole person. The diagnosis by a physical therapist should be clearly documented and can take many formats. Some therapists choose to use common terminology to describe a diagnosis such as ICD coding or similar medical terminology. Another option is the Practice Patterns in the Guide to Physical Therapist Practice.

Prognosis - Documentation of the prognosis conveys the physical therapist's professional judgment for the patient / client's predicted functional outcome and the required duration of services to obtain this functional outcome.

Plan of Care - Documentation of the plan of care includes: 1) Overall goals stated in measurable terms that indicate the predicted level of improvement in function. Consider the expectation of the patient/client and others as appropriate; 2) A statement of interventions / treatments to be provided during the episode of care; 3) Proposed duration and frequency of service required to reach the goals; 4) Anticipated discharge plans.

Re-examination- Includes data from repeated or new examination elements and is provided to evaluate progress and to modify or redirect intervention. In general, a re-examination of a patient/client should occur whenever there is an unanticipated change in the patient's/client's status, a failure to respond to physical therapy intervention as expected, the need for a new plan of care and / or time factors based on state practice act, or other requirements.

Visit / Encounter Notes - Can be referred to as daily notes. Document sequential implementation of the plan of care established by the physical therapist, including changes in patient/client status and variations and progressions of specific interventions used and may include specific plans for the next visit or visits. Components include: Patient / client or caregiver report; Interventions provided including frequency, intensity, and duration as appropriate; Patient/client response to treatments / interventions; Communication / collaboration with other providers/patient/client/family/ significant other; Factors that modify frequency or intensity of intervention and progression of goals; Plan for next visit(s) including interventions with objectives, progression parameters and precautions, if indicated.

Discharge Summary - Documentation is required following conclusion, whether due to discharge or discontinuation of physical therapy services. The purpose of the discharge summary is to highlight a patient / client's progression towards goals and discharge plans. Essentially, this is the last time a therapist has to convey the outcome of physical therapy services. It is also the last opportunity to justify the medical necessity for the episode of care.
