

Improve your fico scores by fixing errors in your credit history

Definition of FICO Scores

FICO Scores are credit scores that are used by lenders to assess the creditworthiness of a borrower. The scores range from 300 to 850 and are based on a variety of factors such as payment history, amount of debt, length of credit history, types of credit used, and new credit inquiries. A higher score indicates a lower risk of default and is generally considered to be a good indicator of creditworthiness.

Overview of Credit History

Credit history is the record of a person's or organization's past borrowing and repaying of debt. It is used by lenders to determine whether to extend credit or approve a loan. A credit report is a detailed summary of an individual's credit history, including information about payments, outstanding debt, and other financial activity. Credit reports are used by lenders to assess the risk of extending credit to a potential borrower. Credit scores are based on the information in a credit report.
