

The Financial Impact of Cancer

Did you know that financial distress from out-of-pocket cancer treatment costs increases the risk of death for individuals with cancer by 79%?¹

In 2022, 79% of our clients who reported their annual income made $42,000 or less.

The monthly costs of basic needs for an average family in Texas:

- Rent = $1,500
- Utilities & Phone = $615
- Car Payment & Car Insurance for one car = $630
- Gas for one car = $250
- Groceries = $800

How do you choose between groceries for your family or anti-nausea medication?

Anti-nausea medication and treatment equipment can cost $200-$750 per month, depending on the cancer type.

How do you choose between your car payment and cancer treatment?

Under an insurance plan, co-pays for radiation appointments can cost around $60 each time – most radiation cycles are 40 sessions. The total cost of radiation treatment can total around $2,400.

How do you choose between your basic needs and cancer?

We all can see how this amount of take-home pay will not cover basic monthly bills AND additional cancer-related bills.

Cancer Care Services exists, so no one has to choose between paying for basic needs and cancer-related bills.

Delivering Affordable Cancer Care in the 21st Century Institute of Medicine, Board on Health Care Services, National Cancer Policy Forum, 2013-06-20 Rising health care costs are a central fiscal challenge confronting the United States National spending on health care currently accounts for 18 percent of gross domestic product GDP but is anticipated to increase to 25 percent of GDP by 2037 The Bipartisan Policy Center argues that this rapid growth in health expenditures creates an unsustainable burden on America's economy with far reaching consequences These consequences include crowding out many national priorities including investments in education infrastructure and research stagnation of employee wages and decreased international competitiveness In spite of health care costs that far exceed those of other countries health outcomes in the United States are not considerably better With the goal of ensuring that patients have access to high quality affordable cancer care the Institute of Medicine's IOM's National Cancer Policy Forum convened a public workshop Delivering Affordable Cancer Care in the 21st Century October 8-9 2012 in Washington DC Delivering Affordable Cancer Care in the 21st Century summarizes the workshop

Cancer Care in Low-Resource Areas National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Health and Medicine Division, Board on Health Care Services, National Cancer Policy Forum, 2017-12-14 Though cancer was once considered to be a problem primarily in wealthy nations low and middle income countries now bear a majority share of the global cancer burden and cancer often surpasses the burden of infectious diseases in these countries Effective low cost cancer control options are available for some malignancies with the World Health Organization estimating that these interventions could facilitate the prevention of approximately one third of cancer deaths worldwide Effective cancer treatment approaches are also available and can reduce the morbidity and mortality due to cancer in low resource areas But these interventions remain inaccessible for many people in the world especially those residing in low resource communities that are characterized by a lack of funds on an individual or a societal basis to cover health infrastructure and care costs As a result worse outcomes for patients with cancer are more common in low and middle income countries compared with high income countries Few guidelines and strategies for cancer control consider the appropriateness and feasibility of interventions in low resource settings and this may undermine the effectiveness of care Recognizing the challenges of providing cancer care in resource constrained settings the National Academies of Sciences Engineering and Medicine developed a two workshop series examining cancer care in low resource communities building on prior work of the National Academies The first workshop held in October 2015 focused on cancer prevention and early detection The second workshop was held in November 2016 and focused on cancer treatment palliative care and survivorship care in low resource areas This publication summarizes the presentations and discussions of this workshop

Cancer Care Harold Glucksberg, Jack W. Singer, 1980 Delivering High-Quality Cancer Care Committee on Improving the Quality of Cancer Care: Addressing the Challenges of an Aging Population, Board on Health Care Services, Institute of Medicine, 2014-01-10 In the United States approximately 14 million people have had cancer and more than 1.6 million new cases are diagnosed each year However more than a decade after the Institute of Medicine IOM first studied the quality of cancer care the barriers to achieving excellent care for all cancer patients remain daunting Care often is not patient centered many patients do not receive palliative care to manage their symptoms and side effects from treatment and decisions about care often are not based on the latest scientific evidence The cost of cancer care also is rising faster than many sectors of medicine having increased to 125 billion in 2010 from 72 billion in 2004 and is projected to reach 173 billion by 2020 Rising costs are making cancer care less affordable for patients and their families and are creating disparities in patients access to high quality cancer care There also are growing shortages of health professionals skilled in providing cancer care and the number of adults age 65 and older the group most susceptible to cancer is expected to double by 2030 contributing to a 45 percent increase in the number of people developing cancer The current care delivery system is poorly prepared to address the care needs of this population which are complex due to altered physiology functional and cognitive impairment multiple coexisting diseases increased side effects from treatment and greater need for social support

Delivering High Quality Cancer Care Charting a New Course for a System in Crisis presents a conceptual framework for improving the quality of cancer care This study proposes improvements to six interconnected components of care 1 engaged patients 2 an adequately staffed trained and coordinated workforce 3 evidence based care 4 learning health care information technology IT 5 translation of evidence into clinical practice quality measurement and performance improvement and 6 accessible and affordable care This report recommends changes across the board in these areas to improve the quality of care shared goal the cancer care community can improve the quality of life and outcomes for people facing a cancer diagnosis

Culture and Cancer Care Simon Dein, 2006 Cancer is more than a biological disease Cultural factors are involved at every stage in the journey through cancer from prevention to palliative care Based upon recent studies from the United Kingdom Europe and the United States Culture and Cancer Care examines a number of cultural themes in relation to cancer including The disparity of rates of cancer among different ethnic groups Culture and screening Breaking bad news and communication Cultural variations in emotional responses to cancer Cultural variability in cancer treatments and the influence on prognosis Palliative care across cultures The book focuses on three main themes culture race and ethnicity and their relationship to cancer the cultural context of sickness and help seeking behaviour the shift from biomedicine to alternative forms of treatment Throughout the book a critical stance is adopted towards race and culture focusing on the relation between these concepts and social deprivation Culture and Cancer Care is key reading for students researchers and practitioners in oncology and palliative care offering a clear analysis of cultural differences with regard to illness and health care as well as suggestions of how ethnic disparities can be overcome both at a political and local level through cultural understanding and culturally appropriate health education

Enhancing Data Systems to Improve the Quality of Cancer Care National Research Council, Commission on Life Sciences, Institute of Medicine, National Cancer Policy Board, 2000-11-09 One of the barriers to improving the quality of cancer care in the United States is the inadequacy of data systems Out of date or incomplete information about the performance of doctors hospitals health plans and public agencies makes it hard to gauge the quality of care Augmenting today's data systems could start to fill the gap This report examines the strengths and weaknesses of current systems and makes recommendations for enhancing data systems to improve the quality of cancer care The board's recommendations fall into three key areas Enhance key elements of the data system infrastructure i.e. quality of care measures cancer registries and databases data collection technologies and analytic capacity Expand support for analyses of quality of cancer care using existing data systems Monitor the effectiveness of data systems to promote quality improvement within health systems

Cancer Care in Low-Resource Areas National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Institute of Medicine, Board on Health Care Services, National Cancer Policy Forum, 2016-12-01 Though cancer was once considered to be a problem primarily in wealthy nations low and middle income countries now bear a majority share of the global cancer burden and cancer often surpasses the burden of infectious diseases in these countries Effective low cost cancer control options are available for some malignancies with the World Health Organization estimating that these interventions could facilitate the prevention of approximately one third of cancer deaths worldwide But these interventions remain inaccessible for many people in the world especially those residing in low resource communities that are characterized by a lack of funds on an individual or societal basis to cover health infrastructure and care costs Few guidelines and strategies for cancer control consider the appropriateness and feasibility of interventions in low resource settings and may undermine the effectiveness of these efforts For example interventions that are designed for high resource settings may not account for important considerations in low resource settings such as resource constraints infrastructure requirements or whether a community has the capacity to deliver downstream cancer care Patients in resource constrained communities continue to face delayed diagnoses of cancer potentially resulting in the diagnosis of later stage cancers and worsened patient outcomes In addition social stigmas geopolitical issues and cultural norms may limit access to cancer care in certain communities Recognizing the challenges of providing cancer care in these settings the National Academies of Sciences Engineering and Medicine developed a workshop series examining cancer care in low resource communities This report summarizes the presentations and discussions from the first workshop which focused on cancer prevention and early detection
