Participatory Case Study

Work Sion Williams, John Keady, 2021-01-03 Participatory Case Study Work shows academic co researchers how to adapt and implement their methods so that data collection and analysis is authentically participatory At the heart of this text is advocating a participatory approach to case study work with co construction as a catalyst for shared understanding and action in advancing ageing studies Whilst case study research has a relatively long tradition in the canon of research methodologies little attention has so far been paid to the importance and value of participatory case study work This is surprising as its egalitarian and democratic value base naturally lends itself to the co production and co creation of personal and collective theory drawn directly from lived experience The book brings together over 15 years worth of participatory case study work in ageing studies in which the editors have been actively involved as either front line researchers or as supervisors to PhD and MPhil studies adopting the methodology and from where each of the contributors is selected Real life case examples are shared in the main chapters of the book and they provide direction as to how learning can be applied to other settings The chapters also contain key references and recommended reading This volume will appeal to undergraduate and postgraduate students as well as postdoctoral researchers interested in fields such as research methods qualitative methods ageing studies and mental health studies methodology for pain assessment health communication decision making future time perspective and retirement goals The reader will finish this book with a greater understanding of the problems and potential solutions for addressing the important problems of an ageing population This timely book will make an important contribution to the current aging literature by offering new ideas to stimulate further research and application in understanding health cognition and ageing This book is appropriate for advanced undergraduate students graduate students and professionals who study or work in the fields of psychology gerontology social work human development and health fields such as nursing physical therapy and occupational therapy

Narrative-based Practice in Speech-language Pathology Jacqueline J. Hinckley, 2008 This book addresses the clinician side of the therapeutic equation by spotlighting the interactional aspects of clinical work in speech language pathology and encourages the development of interactional skills and attitudes as the clinician gains experience The method used to explore this topic is autoethnographic narrative a commonly used tool in other disciplines including medicine listening to patients and occupational therapy but thus far rarely explored in speech language pathology

Nursing Older People Sally J. Redfern, Fiona Ross, 2006 Nursing Older People focuses on evidence based care and the effectiveness of interventions that support independence It takes a person centred approach to understanding and meeting the needs and problems that nurses and other practitioners deal with every day such as the need to reduce the difficulties faced by problems of pain immobility breathlessness eating and drinking and eliminating for example The accessible evidence based information in this book will help to give practitioners the confidence to challenge the status quo and look for ways to improve the quality of care

BOOK JACKET

Social Research Methods in Dementia Studies John Keady, Lars-Christer Hydén, Ann Johnson, Caroline Swarbrick, 2017-10-06 Traditionally the most preferred social research methods in dementia studies have been interviews focus groups and non participant observations Most of these methods have been used for a long time by researchers in other social research fields but their application to the field of dementia studies is a relatively new phenomenon A ground breaking book Social Research Methods in Dementia Studies shows researchers how to adapt their methods of data collection to address the individual needs of someone who is living with dementia With an editorial team that includes Ann Johnson a trained nurse and person living with dementia this enlightening volume mainly draws its contents from two interdisciplinary social research teams in dementia namely the Center for Dementia Research CEDER at Linköping University in Norrköping Sweden and the Dementia and Ageing Research Team DART at The University of Manchester in Manchester UK Case examples are shared in each of the main chapters to help ground the social research methods in a real life context and provide direction as to how learning can be applied to other settings Chapters also contain key references and recommended reading This volume will appeal to undergraduate and postgraduate students as well as postdoctoral researchers interested in fields such as Research Methods Qualitative Methods and Dementia Studies

Partnerships in Family Care Mike Nolan, 2003 What are the key features of partnerships between family and professional carers How do partnerships change over time What is needed to help create the best working partnerships Forging partnerships between service users family carers and service providers is a key theme in both the policy and academic literatures However what such partnerships mean and how they can be created and sustained while responding to change over time is far from clear This book considers how family and professional carers can work together more effectively in order to provide the highest quality of care to people who need support in order to remain in their own homes It adopts a temporal perspective looking at key transitions in caregiving and suggests the most appropriate types of help at particular points in time It draws on both empirical and theoretical sources emerging from several countries and relating to a number of differing caregiving contexts in order to illustrate the essential elements of relationship centred care Partnerships in Family Care will be important reading for all health care students and professionals with an interest in community and home care for the ill disabled and elderly

Men As Caregivers Betty J. Kramer, Edward H. Thompson, 2005 Despite the proliferation of books and articles on caregiving over the past three decades the vast majority of research has centered on the experience of the female caregiver This focus on women is neither unwarranted nor surprising given that women generally predominate in caregiving roles Nonetheless recent studies estimate that between 14 and 18 percent of men ranging in ages from nineteen to later middle age are providing care to a family member or friend with a serious illness or disability And in men 75 or older there are more husbands caring for wives than vice versa Also among persons caring for AIDS sufferers in central cities over 50 percent are men In light of these substantial numbers plus demographic trends that will probably increase the proportion of male caregivers in the future it is important to study men in caregiving roles to further our understanding of this critical area of healthcare Drs Kramer and Thompson both experienced researchers in the area of men as caregivers provide an in depth and comprehensive overview of the topic in this collection of articles from various experts Part I provides the rationale for the volume explores styles of caregiving and critiques the premise that men do not do hands on care Part II reviews theoretical explanations of the gendered division of labor in family care and provides a critical review of methods used in studies that focus exclusively on male caregivers Part III consists of nine chapters that both review the literature and present original research on male caregivers Special consideration is given to gay male caregivers of partners with AIDS men who care for a family member with dementia fathers of adult children with mental disabilities spousal care of women with cancer and sons caring for parents Part IV profiles gender sensitive interventions skills supports and services that draw upon research and clinical wisdom for working with the male caregiver This valuable collection of current research addresses a neglected but increasingly important area of caregiving
