

Écho de l'art conceptuel dans l'esthétique analytique

À quelles conditions peut-on parler d'une œuvre d'art ? C'est la question à laquelle ce texte tente de répondre en faisant dialoguer l'esthétique analytique et l'art conceptuel – deux courants (l'un philosophique, l'autre artistique) qui ont élaboré, pendant la deuxième moitié du XX<sup>e</sup> siècle, une réflexion stimulante sur les présupposés de l'art. Les philosophes Morris Weitz, Nelson Goodman, Arthur Danto et George Dickie ont en effet dirigé leur réflexion sur le contexte dans lequel s'inscrivent les œuvres plutôt que sur les qualités intrinsèques de ces dernières, tandis que les artistes conceptuels, en opérant une dématérialisation de l'œuvre, ont inscrit ce questionnement au sein même de leur pratique. En s'appuyant sur ces réflexions, ce livre propose de penser l'œuvre comme un processus au centre d'un monde relationnel entre l'artiste, le spectateur, l'institution et la théorie. Il espère faire apparaître deux conditions minimales à l'art : l'existence d'un auteur (singulier ou pluriel) dont l'intention est de « faire œuvre » et la présence d'une pratique établie – un monde de l'art.

Cécile Angelini a étudié la philosophie à l'Université libre de Bruxelles. Doctorante en esthétique et philosophie de l'art à l'Université Catholique de Louvain et Aspirante F.R.S. - FNRS, ses recherches portent sur les enjeux philosophiques soulevés par les modes d'expression extrêmes et inédits de l'art contemporain.
