Ecls B User Manual:

Early Childhood Longitudinal Study, Birth Cohort (ECLS-B) User's Manual for the ECLS-B Nine-Month Public-Use Data File and Electronic Code Book. NCES 2005-013 Christine Nord, Brad Edwards, Richard Hilpert, Laura Branden, Carol Andreassen, Anne Elmore, Desrene Sesay, Philip Fletcher, Jim Green, Ray Saunders, Rick Dulaney, Lizabeth Reaney, Kristin Denton Flanagan, Jerry West, 2005

The Early Childhood Longitudinal Study Birth Cohort ECLS B follows a nationally representative cohort of children born in 2001 from birth through first grade. It is part of the Early Childhood Longitudinal Study ECLS, a longitudinal studies program comprising two cohorts: the birth cohort ECLS B and a kindergarten cohort ECLS K. Together, these cohorts provide the breadth and depth of data required to more fully describe children's health, early learning, development, and education experiences. The birth cohort study focuses on those characteristics of children and their families including children's early health care and in-home and out-of-home experiences that influence children's development and first experiences with the demands of formal school, i.e., kindergarten and first grade. The two cohorts ECLS K and ECLS B are designed to overlap in time points; i.e., both have kindergarten and first grade data collections and measures, e.g., similar direct child assessment and parent interview constructs. An overlapping cohort design aids in following the trajectory of children's development. This manual provides guidance and documentation for users of the 9-month data of the ECLS B. The first chapter presents an overview of the ECLS B study. Subsequent chapters provide details on the instruments and measures used, the sample design, weighting procedures, response rates, data collection and processing procedures, and the structure and contents of the data file. The parents of 10,688 children born in 2001 participated in the first wave of the ECLS B study when the children were approximately 9 months old. Child assessments were conducted on a total of 10,224 of these children. Because the sampled children were born between January and December 2001, base year data were collected on a rolling basis between the fall of 2001 and the fall of 2002. The term 9 months is used throughout this document to refer to the data collection that took place between the fall of 2001 and the fall of 2002, at which time most of the sampled children were 9 months of age. Because of the time that was required to locate families and to schedule and conduct the home visit, children ranged in age from approximately 6 months to 22 months at the time of the assessment. The first follow-up took place when the children were age 2, and additional waves of data collection are planned at 4 years of age and then in kindergarten and first grade. The central goal of the ECLS B is to provide a comprehensive and reliable set of data that may be used to describe and to better understand children's early development, their health care, nutrition, and physical well-being, their preparation for school, key transitions during the early childhood years, their experiences in early care and education programs, kindergarten and first grade, and how their early experiences relate to their later development, learning, and experiences in school. References are located at the end of each chapter. Contains 36 tables and 87 exhibits. NCES Handbook of Survey Methods Lori Thurgood, 2003. Handbook of Labor Economics Orley Ashenfelter, David

Participation Patterns: An Investigation of Delayed Entry and Early Exit Laura Tiehen,2014 USDA s Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women Infants and Children WIC provides nutritious foods nutrition counseling and referrals to health and other social services to low income women and their infants children up to age 5 Despite the health benefits of WIC participation many eligible women do not participate during pregnancy and many households exit WIC when a participating child turns 1 year old The authors of this report use the first two waves of the Early Childhood Longitudinal Study Birth Cohort ECLS B to understand these transitions into and out of WIC Findings show that households that are more economically advantaged are more likely to delay entry into the program or exit after a child turns 1 year old Some of the mothers exiting the program reported that WIC requires too much effort and that its benefits are not worth the time 26 2 percent of those exiting or that they have scheduling and transportation problems almost 10 percent of those exiting suggesting that the costs of participation may be a barrier to continued WIC participation The Relationship Between the Amount of Time Children Spend in Child Care and Their Healthy Development During the Toddler Years Lisa Marie Stanley,2008 Education Statistics Quarterly ,2004 Children Born in 2001 Kristin Denton Flanagan,2004
