

Topic #4: Ecological Succession

KEY

Ecosystems are constantly changing in response to natural and human disturbances. As an ecosystem changes, older inhabitants gradually die out and new organisms move in, causing further changes in the community. This series of predictable changes that occurs in a community over time is called ecological succession. Ecological succession is slow and gradual; it occurs over a period of many years. As ecological succession occurs, types of species present in a community will change in response to changing environmental conditions such as fires, climate change, and the clearing of forests to plant crops. Pioneer species arrive first. As environmental conditions change, they are replaced by other species, and later these species may be replaced by another set of species. Primary Succession: Succession that occurs on surfaces where no soil exists. It leads to the gradual establishment of biotic communities in lifeless areas.

- Rock weathers and crumbles into particles, releasing nutrients.
- Physical and chemical breakdown of rock
- Soil slowly forms
- Initial pioneer species: lichens, mosses.
- Next you will see: Herbs, grasses, low shrubs.
- Climax Community: Trees.

Secondary Succession: Ecological succession in an area where natural vegetation has been removed or destroyed but the soil or bottom sediment has not been destroyed. Secondary succession may follow a disturbance that destroys a community without destroying the soil.

Teaching and Learning Online Franklin S. Allaire, Jennifer E. Killham, 2023-01-01 Science is unique among the disciplines since it is inherently hands on. However, the hands on nature of science instruction also makes it uniquely challenging when teaching in virtual environments. How do we as science teachers deliver high quality experiences to secondary students in an online environment that leads to age grade level appropriate science content knowledge and literacy but also collaborative experiences in the inquiry process and the nature of science? The expansion of online environments for education poses logistical and pedagogical challenges for early childhood and elementary science teachers and early learners. Despite digital media becoming more available and ubiquitous and increases in online spaces for teaching and learning (Killham et al 2014, Wong et al 2018), PreK-12 teachers consistently report feeling underprepared or overwhelmed by online learning environments (Molnar et al 2021, Seaman et al 2018). This is coupled with persistent challenges related to elementary teachers' lack of confidence and low science teaching self-efficacy (Brigido, Borrachero, Bermejo, Gunning, Duran, 2004). Ideal for undergraduate teacher candidates, graduate students, teacher educators, classroom teachers, parents, and administrators, this book addresses why and how teachers use online environments to teach science content and work with elementary students through a research-based foundation.

Resources for Teaching Middle School Science Smithsonian Institution, National Academy of Engineering, National Science Resources Center of the National Academy of Sciences, Institute of Medicine, 1998-04-30 With age appropriate inquiry centered curriculum materials and sound teaching practices, middle school science can capture the interest and energy of adolescent students and expand their understanding of the world around them. Resources for Teaching Middle School Science developed by the National Science Resources Center (NSRC) is a valuable tool for identifying and selecting effective science curriculum materials that will engage students in grades 6 through 8. The volume describes more than 400 curriculum titles that are aligned with the National Science Education Standards. This completely new guide follows on the success of Resources for Teaching Elementary School Science, the first in the NSRC series of annotated guides to hands on inquiry centered curriculum materials and other resources for science teachers. The curriculum materials in the new guide are grouped in five chapters by scientific area: Physical Science, Life Science, Environmental Science, Earth and Space Science, and Multidisciplinary and Applied Science. They are also grouped by type: core materials, supplementary units, and science activity books. Each annotation of curriculum material includes a recommended grade level, a description of the activities involved, and of what students can be expected to learn, a list of accompanying materials, a reading level, and ordering information. The curriculum materials included in this book were selected by panels of teachers and scientists using evaluation criteria developed for the guide. The criteria reflect and incorporate goals and principles of the National Science Education Standards. The annotations designate the specific content standards on which these curriculum pieces focus. In addition to the curriculum chapters, the guide contains six chapters of diverse resources that are directly relevant to middle school science Among these is a chapter on educational software and multimedia programs chapters on books about science and teaching directories and guides to science trade books and periodicals for teachers and students Another section features institutional resources One chapter lists about 600 science centers museums and zoos where teachers can take middle school students for interactive science experiences Another chapter describes nearly 140 professional associations and U S government agencies that offer resources and assistance Authoritative extensive and thoroughly indexed and the only guide of its kind Resources for Teaching Middle School Science will be the most used book on the shelf for science teachers school administrators teacher trainers science curriculum specialists advocates of hands on science teaching and concerned parents Resources in Education ,1985 Resources in Education ,1982 Climate Change and Environmental Degradation in the MENA Region Ayad Al-Quraishi,Abdelazim Negm,Brahim Benzougagh,2024-12-23 This book reviews the factors contributing to the degradation of natural resources in the MENA region caused by climate change and contamination It examines how these issues affect humans their health resources and the planet s future The impact of climate change is evident in the diminishing quality of land water and air which leads to several environmental problems such as drought land degradation vegetation decline reduced water bodies soil damage and other ecological concerns Divided into 21 chapters the book comprehensively analyses the risks brought about by climate change and environmental pollution The chapters are contributed by a diverse team of authors from various countries in the MENA region who offer a comprehensive overview of recent technologies future developments and several case studies analyses In this book readers will find topics such as Impact of climate change saline irrigation water and other factors on soil degradation and carbon and nitrogen cycling in the MENA region Desertification flood storms contamination and their effects on natural resources and sustainability in the region Impact of recycled scrap steel on soil contamination agriculture wastewater on lakes degradation and water pollution and the effects of wastewater on agriculture Consequences of mismanaging natural resources and their influence on the environment interrelation between Greenhouse Gas Emissions Climate Change and the deterioration of natural resources Application of non conventional methods to address natural resource issues This book calls for action to protect natural resources and the environment These measures may include enacting legislation and regulations to restrict human activities developing public understanding of the necessity of environmental protection against climate change and environmental contamination and supporting sustainable behaviours to preserve natural resources Given its breadth the book appeals to scholars researchers and policymakers alike The Science Teacher ,1997 SCC Library has 1964 cur Sierra Nevada Ecosystem Project Final Report to Congress Sierra Nevada Ecosystem Project,1996 Video Source Book ,2008 The Chemical Engineer ,2008 Library Journal/School Library Journal Previews ,1973 Includes three times a year Audiovisual guide previously issued as part of Library journal Renzo Piano Building Workshop Renzo Piano,2007 This monograph focuses on Piano s most remarkable
