Innovations in Improving Access to Higher Education Barbara Schneider, Justina Judy, 2014-02-10 Gaining an understanding about the barriers in transitioning from high school to college is crucial to improving college access and matriculation particularly for low income families and first generation college goers These obstacles include many factors such as Lack of access to resources at home or school Not having a rigorous college preparatory curriculum or not taking advantage of these courses Misperceptions about the college going process This volume introduces innovative and effective ways to ease the transition process One essential question examined is the role of high schools and whether they should take a more active role in preparing students for college While some interventions in this issue are designed for school wide implementation others are more targeted and focus on certain aspects of the college process such as financial aid but all recognize the role of high schools in shaping students college going aspirations and behavior By including the most cutting edge and rigorous research on improving college access this volume Delineates the obstacles adolescents face in their transition from high school to college Increases understanding of the mechanisms contributing to gaps in college enrollment Highlights how interventions can help to ease these challenges This is the 140th volume of New Directions for Youth Development the Jossey Bass quarterly report series dedicated to bringing together everyone concerned with helping young people including scholars practitioners and people from different disciplines and professions The Normal Accident Theory of Education Andrew K. Milton, 2014-04-01 Much of the current debate about education too often resembles the blind men describing an elephant apprehending only a particular part of the situation or the process many analysts tell an evocative but incomplete story The so called reform discussion proceeds with a lack of depth about the nuances and realistic limitations in the institutional order of school This book argues that as regulation of schools moves further up the bureaucratic hierarchy first to state departments of education then to the national department of education the legal and institutional requirements get more intensive but less concretely useful in class rooms This bureaucratization serves to tighten the organizational environment thereby increasing the risk of normal accidents The increasing governmental management in other words makes it more likely that schools will fail to meet their goals Analyses of education are too often developed for public consumption in a fast moving political world This book examines some of the deeper organizational reasons why things don t work so well in school as well as a look at some of things that do work Most importantly the book will explain how the social and cultural expectations of what schools can do may create unrealistic hopes We as a society and schools as institutions embrace these unreasonably high hopes at our collective peril Check out Andrew s latest interview with Seattle Radio <http://kiroradio.com> listen 9972862 Congressional Record United States.
