Any Known Blood Lawrence Hill, 2011-02-08 Contains extra content insights interviews and more Langston Cane V is thirty eight divorced and childless and has just been fired for sabotaging a government official's speech The eldest son of a white mother and prominent black father Langston feels more acutely than ever the burden of his illustrious family name After a run in with his father in Oakville Langston takes off for Baltimore where he embarks on a remarkable quest to uncover his family's past and his own sense of self At once elegant and sensuous wry and witty Any Known Blood slips effortlessly from the slave trade of 19th century Virginia to the modern predominantly white suburbs of Oakville Ontario once a final stop on the Underground Railroad Rich in historical detail Any Known Blood is an engrossing tale about one man's attempt to find himself through unearthing and giving voice to those who came before him

The Illegal Lawrence Hill, 2016-02-23 Precarious Passages Tuire Valkeakari, 2022-06-28 Precarious Passages unites literature written by members of the far flung Black Anglophone diaspora Rather than categorizing novels as simply African American Black Canadian Black British or postcolonial African Caribbean this book takes an integrative approach it argues that fiction creates and sustains a sense of a wider African diasporic community in the Western world Tuire Valkeakari analyzes the writing of Toni Morrison Caryl Phillips Lawrence Hill and other contemporary novelists of African descent She shows how their novels connect with each other and with defining moments in the transatlantic experience most notably the Middle Passage and enslavement The lives of their characters are marked by migration and displacement Their protagonists yearn to experience fulfilling human connection in a place they can call home Portraying strategies of survival adaptation and resistance across the limitless varieties of life experiences in the diaspora these novelists continually reimagine what it means to share a Black diasporic identity

Transnational Black Dialogues Markus Nehl, 2016-08-15 Markus Nehl focuses on black authors who from a 21st century perspective revisit slavery in the U.S. Ghana South Africa Canada and Jamaica Nehl's provocative readings of Toni Morrison's A Mercy Saidiya Hartman's Lose Your Mother Yvette Christians' Unconfessed Lawrence Hill's The Book of Negroes and Marlon James' The Book of Night

Women delineate how these texts engage in a fruitful dialogue with African diaspora theory about the complex relation between the local and transnational and the enduring effects of slavery Reflecting on the ethics of narration this study is particularly attentive to the risks of representing anti black violence and to the intricacies involved in re appropriating slavery's archive

Literary Location and Dislocation of Myth in the Post/Colonial Anglophone World, 2017-11-01 The English speaking world today is so diverse that readers need a gateway to its many postcolonial narratives and art forms This collection of essays examines this diversity and what brings so many different cultures together Whether Indian Canadian Australasian or Zimbabwean the stories discussed focus on how artists render experiences of separation belonging and loss The histories and transformations postcolonial countries have gone through have given rise to a wide range of myths that retrace their birth evolution and decline Myths have enabled ethnic communities to live together the first section of this collection dwells on stories which can be both inclusive and exclusive under the aegis of nation While certain essays revisit and retell the crucial role women have played in mythical texts like the Mahabharata others discuss how settler colonies return to and re appropriate a past in order to define themselves in the present Crises clashes and conflicts which are at the heart of the second section of this book entail myths of historical and cultural dislocation They appear as breaks in time that call for reconstruction and redefinition a chief instance being the trauma of slavery with its deep geographical and cultural dislocations However the crises that have deprived entire communities of their homeland and their identity are followed by moments of remembrance reconciliation and rebuilding As the term postcolonial suggests the formerly colonized people seek to revisit and re investigate the impact of colonization before committing it to collective memory In a more specifically literary section texts are read as mythopoeia foregrounding the aesthetic and poetic issues in colonial and postcolonial poems and novels The texts explored here study in different ways the process of mythologization through images of location and dislocation The editors of this collection hope that readers worldwide will enjoy reading about the myths that have shaped and continue to shape postcolonial communities and nations

Any Known Blood Lawrence Hill, 1998-12-16 Spanning five generations sweeping across a century and a half of almost unknown history this acclaimed and unexpectedly funny novel is the story of a man seeking himself in the mirror of his family's past There were Canes in Canada before the United States erupted into civil war Their roots are deep their legacy is rich but Langston Cane V knows little of his heritage He is thirty eight divorced and childless and has just been fired for sabotaging a government official's speech The eldest son of a white mother and prominent black father Langston feels more acutely than ever the burden of his illustrious family name and his racially mixed heritage To be black in a white society is hard enough to be half black half white is to have no identity at all Or so Langston believes After a run in with his father

Langston takes off for his feisty aunt's house in Baltimore where he embarks on a remarkable quest for his family's past. It's said that those who forget history are condemned to repeat it, but to Langston history offers not condemnation but reprieve. For when he stumbles across a treasure trove of family documents, he sets off on a journey through time that will lead him back to the famous antislavery raid on Harpers Ferry, Virginia, and the great-great grandfather who fought beside John Brown. He rediscovers the long line of relatives who have battled for racial justice decade after decade. He finds passion, dignity, and courage, and at last, by unearthing and giving voice to those who came before him, he finds himself rich in historical detail and gracefully flowing from the slave trade of nineteenth-century Virginia to the present. Any Known Blood gives life to a story never before told, a story of five generations of a black Canadian family whose tragedies and victories merge with the American experience.

Discrepant Parallels Gillian Roberts, 2015-05-01. An examination of the divergent Canadian cultural investments in the Canada-US border.

Blood Lawrence Hill, 2013-09-28. Selected for The Globe 100 Books in 2013. With the 2013 CBC Massey Lectures, bestselling author Lawrence Hill offers a provocative examination of the scientific and social history of blood and on the ways that it unites and divides us today. Blood runs red through every person's arteries and fulfills the same functions in every human being. The study of blood has advanced our understanding of biology and improved medical treatments, but its cultural and social representations have divided us perennially. Blood pulses through religion, literature, and the visual arts. Every time it pools or spills, we learn a little more about what brings human beings together and what pulls us apart. For centuries, perceptions of difference in our blood have separated people on the basis of gender, race, class, and nation. Ideas about blood purity have spawned rules about who gets to belong to a family or cultural group, who enjoys the rights of citizenship and nationality, what privileges one can expect to be granted or denied, whether you inherit poverty or the right to rule over the masses, what constitutes fair play in sport, and what defines a person's identity. Blood: The Stuff of Life is a bold meditation on blood as an historical and contemporary marker of identity, belonging, gender, race, class, citizenship, athletic superiority, and nationhood.
