

Creationism vs. Evolution

Since high school, I have been on something of an intellectual and spiritual journey from what I was told to believe to what I believe for myself. It wasn't until recently that I have finally started to become comfortable with what I do and do not accept as the truth regarding the origins of our existence here on this planet. I grew up in a diverse Christian home: my mother's side are devout Roman Catholics and my Father's Lutheran. I was raised Catholic and we went to mass religiously (no pun intended) every Sunday and my mom said my Hail Mary's with me every night before bed.

The existence of God and His role in our lives was not even a question. From there, I went to a Christian pre-school, a Catholic kindergarten and grade school, and then a private Catholic all-girls academy. In High School, evolution was barely talked about unless you were taking a class specifically related to it (or maybe it was but I tended to fall into a coma during science related lectures) and in primary school, it wasn't talked about at all.

My father is what my mother likes to call a "holy roller": he is a staunch Fundamentalist Christian and a Young-Earth Creationist who believes that the bible is fact and not to be interpreted in any way other than literally. I can remember him talking about the evils of evolution and how it was impossible for monkeys to still exist if we evolved from them. He said that the evolutionary theory was just that: a theory and not fact like the bible. My father is an extremely intelligent man who reads and researches his beliefs but he is blindly religious.

My high school was an extremely intellectually nurturing environment. When I started religion classes there, while there was some bias, I got to hear other peoples points of view and beliefs which helped me to start figuring out what it was that I truly believed. It was through these classes that I met some girls who happened to be atheists. I had no idea that the general consensus among those girls was that all religious people were un-intellectual and unintelligent because of Young-Earth Creationist. It was during this time that I started read about the subject and I read a lot.

I read a book by a Christian astronomer named Hugh Ross, an Old-Earth Creationist who believes that the first few chapters of the Book of Genesis are not a literal portrayal of actual events but rather, God's revelation of the creation of events to the writer of Genesis. I thoroughly enjoyed the book but I promised my father I would at least give some Young-Earth Creationist views a chance. My dad gave me two books: one by Henry Morris and one by Ken Ham (the author of the assigned article.) I was unimpressed by Henry Morris's book as I found it extremely tangential and rambling.

I then moved on the Ken Ham's book, called The Answers Book: The 20 Most-Asked Questions about Creation, Evolution, and the Book of Genesis Answered! I was actually appalled because essentially, Fresh Takes on the Big Questions James Ferguson, 2024-09-12 This book takes a fresh look at a wide range of life's big questions and provides a resource as readers search for answers individually or together in group discussion. The goal is to explore how Christian faith relates to aspects of modern science: the problems of suffering and evil and issues such as gender and sexuality, war and peacemaking, immigration, artificial intelligence, and life after death. It also considers historical evidence for the resurrection of Jesus and the biblical promises of a time when God will restore and renew the world and all that lives within it.

Reformed Theology and Evolutionary Theory Gijsbert Van den Brink, 2020-02-25 Many books aim to help beginners explore whether or not evolutionary science is compatible with Christian faith. This one probes more deeply to ask: What do we learn from modern evolutionary science about key issues that are of special theological concern? And what does Christian theology, especially in its Reformed expressions, say about those same key issues? Gijsbert van den Brink begins by describing the layers of meaning in the phrase evolutionary theory and exploring the question of how to interpret the Bible with regard to science. He then works through five key areas of potential conflict between evolutionary theory and Christian faith, spelling out scientific findings and analyzing Christian doctrinal concerns along the way. His conclusion, although some traditional doctrinal interpretations must be adjusted, evolutionary science is no obstacle to classical Christian faith.

Believing Minds. Fernando José Walsh, 2025-10-09 Is science truly the enemy of faith? Can a practicing scientist believe in God? Is there an inevitable clash between scientific knowledge and the Bible? From Copernicus (1473-1543) to contemporary researchers, 200 highly distinguished scientists provide compelling testimony that science clearly affirms a Creator, one perfectly consistent with the God revealed in the Scriptures. This book delves into the lives and powerful convictions of these titans of science, who were also giants of faith. The culmination of years of deep investigation, this book uncovers a profound truth often obscured by media influence: the supposed incompatibility between science and faith is a fallacy. Instead, it reveals that modern science was born and accelerated by thinkers who based their research on the foundational belief in a wisely designed universe. They saw nature's laws as the imprint of a Supreme Creator who empowered humanity, created in His image, to discover these laws for universal good. Explore the inspiring journeys, remarkable achievements, and deep spiritual convictions of legendary figures like Newton, Galileo, Pascal, Morse, Pasteur, Edison, Marconi, and Einstein. Featured within are over 30 Nobel Prize winners in crucial scientific fields alongside astronauts whose perspectives were transformed by their experiences. Grounded in extensive, meticulous research, the book champions its thesis with undeniable clarity: Science demonstrates that God exists.
