

Imperialism- Chapter 7

-By the late 1800s, Americans began to set their sights on lands abroad. Before, the concern was rebuilding the South and expanding in the West.

-Before the U. S. even thought about expanding abroad, European nations had already begun the process.

-imperialism- economic and political domination of a strong nation over a weaker one.

-Reasons for imperialism:

- * the demand for raw materials for factories (raw materials came from a variety of places)

- * the desire to get around other countries' tariffs (price each country paid to do business on another country's soil- most of the more industrialized nation looked for overseas territories to keep from having to pay high tariffs)

- *cultural superiority

-European countries began investing money in Asia and Africa. Both had an abundance of raw materials.

*To protect their investments, they began to establish colonies and protectorates in these territories (basically gave them political and economic control of these areas)—Remember to mention King Leopold and the Congo.
