2. Pioneer species are the first to colonize an area lacking any life, whereas a climax community is a late successional stage of a stable, complex community.
3. The plants and animals that make up each successional stage change the environment slightly in ways that are either beneficial or harmful for other species. For example, early in succession, shade-intolerant trees may quickly sprout and dominate the landscape. But as these grow, the shade they create makes it difficult for new trees of the same species to become established. This sometimes favours shade-tolerant trees, which begin to replace the other species.

Theoretical Nursing Afaf Ibrahim Meleis, 2011 An additional assumption was that the processes for theory development were new to nursing and hence nurses in graduate programs learned strategies for advancing knowledge from other disciplines This assumption was debunked with the knowledge that nurses were always engaged in knowledge development driven by their experiences in clinical practice Because of these assumptions most of the early writing about theory development was about outlining strategies that should be used rather than strategies that have already been used in the discipline to develop theories Theorists themselves did not uncover or adequately discuss ways by which they developed their theories therefore the tendency was to describe processes that were based on theories developed in other disciplines mainly the physical and social sciences And an implicit assumption was made that there should be a single strategy for theory development some claiming to begin the process from practice and others believing it should be driven by research Provided by publisher

Model of Moral Deliberation maintains that current models of moral deliberation do not effectively deal with contemporary moral complexity because they are based on an inadequate theory of moral cognition Drawing on research in neuroscience evolutionary psychology social theory and dual process cognitive theory and on the work of William James this book develops a theory of moral cognition which provides a major role for aesthetic sensibilities and upon this theory develops a robust model of moral deliberation This model portrays moral deliberation as a back and forth movement between intuitive and analytic cognitions which constructs narrative scenarios and then assesses and revises them according to aesthetic sensibilities Book Review Digest ,1912 World Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology Abstracts ,2000
