

The National Health Service does not aim to make a profit like private sector health services.

(b) Why is this the case?

In the private sector most businesses aim to make a profit. However, in the public sector profit is not an objective. One reason why the NHS does not aim to make a profit is because the majority of its services are provided free to patients at the point of delivery. The provision of health services is funded from taxpayer's money.

Chapter review – Boston Pizza International

(a) What is meant by a business objective? (Use this case as an example.)

Businesses have objectives. The objectives of a business are the goals or targets which the business wants to achieve. In this case one of Boston Pizza's objectives is to grow the business. This is suggested by the fact that the company has grown sales revenue by an average of 5.7 per cent for ten consecutive years.

(b) Describe the purpose of a mission statement.

A mission statement is a description of the purpose of a business. In this case, the purpose of Boston Pizza is to become a world-class franchisor through selecting and training people to manage an outstanding foodservice business profitably. Mission statements are often directed at stakeholders such as customers, employees and shareholders. The purpose of mission statements is to help a business to focus. The mission statement outlines the general aim of the business and reminds employees about what they are expected to achieve. A mission statement may also provide a plan for the future of the business and make clear to all stakeholders what the business is trying to achieve.

It is suggested that BPI is concerned about its image and reputation.

(c) What evidence is there in the case study to support this view?

In recent years a growing number of businesses have been keen to improve their image and develop a good reputation. For example, Boston Pizza have taken into account the needs of the environment, customers, the local community and employees when making business decisions. In this case, Boston Pizza has donated money to charities and won awards such as Franchisor of the Year 2007. This suggests that the company is proud of its achievements and wants to foster a good public image. If a business has a bad image or poor reputation it may lose customers.

(d) Assess why it is important to a company like BPI to have objectives.

Generally, businesses are more likely to be successful if they set goals or objectives. One specific reason is that people in businesses such as Boston Pizza need something to work towards. Goals help to motivate people. For example, franchisees might get bonus payments if they reach certain sales targets. Another reason is that without aims and objectives franchisees might not have the spark needed to keep the business going. They might lose grip and allow their franchise to 'drift'. This might result in the failure of the business. Setting goals also helps to decide where to take a business and what steps are necessary to get there. For example, if Boston Pizza aims to grow the franchise operation, it might decide that launching it abroad might be an appropriate course of action.

Finally, it is easier to assess the performance of a business if objectives are set. If a business achieves its objectives it could be argued that the business has performed well. For example, if Boston Pizza aimed to grow by 5 per cent each year it will have exceeded its objective and can be considered to have performed well. This is because the company has grown by an average of 5.7 per cent in the last 10 years.
