Maurice Blanchot and Fragmentary Writing Leslie Hill, 2012-07-05 Writing in fragments is often held to be one of the most distinctive signature effects of Romantic modern and postmodern literature But what is the fragment and what may be said to be its literary philosophical and political significance Few writers have explored these questions with such probing radicality and rigorous tenacity as the French writer and thinker Maurice Blanchot For the first time in any language this book explores in detail Blanchot's own writing in fragments in order to understand the stakes of the fragmentary within philosophical and literary modernity It attends in detail to each of Blanchot's fragmentary works Awaiting Forgetting The Step Not Beyond and The Writing of the Disaster and reconstructs Blanchot's radical critical engagement with the philosophical and literary tradition in particular with Hegel Nietzsche Heidegger Heraclitus Levinas Derrida Nancy Mallarmé Char and others and assesses Blanchot's account of politics Jewish thought and the Shoah with a view to understanding the stakes of fragmentary writing in Blanchot and within philosophical and literary modernity in general Bartleby, the Scrivener Herman Melville, 2015-08-19 Bartleby the Scrivener A Story of Wall Street 1853 is a short story by the American writer Herman Melville first serialized anonymously in two parts in the November and December editions of Putnam's

Magazine and reprinted with minor textual alterations in 1856 Numerous essays are published on what according to scholar Robert Milder is unquestionably the masterpiece of the short fiction in the Melville canon The narrator of Bartleby the Scrivener is the Lawyer who runs a law practice on Wall Street in New York The Lawyer begins by noting that he is an elderly man and that his profession has brought him into more than ordinary contact with what would seem an interesting and somewhat singular set of men the law copyists or scriveners While the Lawyer knows many interesting stories of such scriveners he bypasses them all in favor of telling the story of Bartleby whom he finds to be the most interesting of all the scriveners Bartleby is according to the Lawyer one of those beings of whom nothing is ascertainable except from the original sources and in his case those were very small One day the Lawyer has a small document he needs examined He calls Bartleby in to do the job but Bartleby responds I would prefer not to This answer amazes the Lawyer who has a natural expectancy of instant compliance He is so amazed by this response and the calm way Bartleby says it that he cannot even bring himself to scold Bartleby Instead he calls in Nippers to examine the document instead

Bartleby, the Scrivener Herman Melville, 2015-05-23 I am a rather elderly man. The nature of my avocations for the last thirty years has brought me into more than ordinary contact with what would seem an interesting and somewhat singular set of men of whom as yet nothing that I know of has ever been written. I mean the law copyists or scriveners. I have known very many of them professionally and privately and if I pleased could relate divers histories at which good-natured gentlemen might smile and sentimental souls might weep. But I waive the biographies of all other scriveners for a few passages in the life of Bartleby who was a scrivener of the strangest I ever saw or heard of. While of other law copyists I might write the complete life of Bartleby nothing of that sort can be done. I believe that no materials exist for a full and satisfactory biography of this man. It is an irreparable loss to literature. Bartleby was one of those beings of whom nothing is ascertainable except from the original sources and in his case those are very small. What my own astonished eyes saw of Bartleby that is all I know of him except indeed one vague report which will appear in the sequel.

Bartleby, the Scrivener Illustrated Herman Melville, 2021-04-13 The narrator is an unnamed Manhattan lawyer aged around his late 50s with a business in legal documents. He already employs two scriveners, Nippers and Turkey, to copy legal documents by hand but an increase in business leads him to advertise for a third. He hires the forlorn-looking Bartleby in the hope that his calmness will soothe the other two, each of whom displays an irascible temperament during an opposite half of the day. An office boy nicknamed Ginger Nut completes the staff. At first Bartleby produces a large volume of high-quality work but one day when asked to help proofread a document Bartleby answers with what soon becomes his perpetual response to every request: "I would prefer not to." To the dismay of the narrator and the irritation of the other employees, Bartleby performs fewer and fewer tasks and eventually none, instead spending long periods of time staring out one of the office's windows at a brick wall. The narrator makes several futile attempts to reason with Bartleby and to learn something about him. When the narrator stops by the office one Sunday morning he discovers that Bartleby is living there. Tension builds as business associates wonder why Bartleby is always there. Sensing the threat to his reputation but emotionally unable to evict Bartleby, the narrator moves his business out. Soon the new tenants come to ask for help in removing Bartleby who now sits on the stairs all day and sleeps in the building's doorway at night. The narrator visits Bartleby and attempts to reason with him. He even invites Bartleby to live with him but Bartleby declines the offer. Later he learns that Bartleby has been imprisoned in the Tombs as a vagrant. The narrator visits Bartleby who does not want to speak with him. The narrator bribes a cook to make sure he gets enough food. When the narrator returns a few days later to check on Bartleby he discovers that he has died of starvation having preferred not to eat. Months later the narrator hears a rumor that Bartleby had worked in a dead letter office and reflects on how this might have affected him The story ends with the narrator saying Ah Bartleby Ah humanity
