Transformation Audit 2011 Jan Hofmeyr, 2012-03-08 The 2011 Transformation Audit presents a collection of articles by South African thought leaders which asks how the country can set goals and achieve them in a hostile global climate that threatens developmental gains that have been painstakingly achieved. For nearly two decades South Africans have conducted exhaustive analyses of the country's challenges embarked on bold scenario exercises and more recently produced forward looking strategies aimed at addressing these challenges. The most eminent of these in recent years were the Department of Economic Development's New Growth Path and the National Planning Commission's Draft National Development Plan. We know now what the problems are and by and large what needs to change to address them. Courage is required now to forge consensus to take decisions on strategies and to start implementing them. As in previous years this publication with its slightly different format and appearance seeks to provide analysis and provoke debate on how this might be achieved.

Social Justice and Transformative Learning Sandra M. Tomlinson-Clarke, Darren L. Clarke, 2016-03-10. The similarities between the United States and South Africa with respect to race power oppression and economic inequities are striking and a better understanding of these parallels can provide educational gains for students and educators in both countries. Through shared experiences and perspectives this volume presents scholarly work from U.S. and South African scholars that advance educational practice in support of social justice and transformative learning. It provides a comprehensive framework for developing transformational learning experiences that facilitates leadership for social justice and a deeper understanding of the factors influencing personal, national and global identity.

Addressing South Africa's Moral Crisis Nico Vorster, 2025-08-22. This book attempts to understand and address the psycho-social dynamics behind South Africa's moral crisis. It describes South Africa as afflicted by state capture, violence, corruption and the looting of state infrastructure thirty years after the establishment of democracy. It then provides a holistic social diagnosis of this problem that integrates the findings of different disciplines into an overall picture of the forces at work in South Africa's collective moral decline. Ultimately this book engages with the deeper psycho-social phenomena behind South Africa's moral decline, arguing that the diagnostic question of why this moral decline has taken place must be answered before turning to the normative question of what ought to happen in this situation. Accordingly this book explores themes regarding the innate moral capacities of the human person, the effects of need pressures and systemic pressures on ethical decision making and the phenomena of distorted motivational drives and distorted behavioral responses. It shows how the framing of virtue-centered moral identities might act as buffers against moral disengagement strategies and assist in promoting pro-social behavior. It then specifies the macro-social changes required to create such an ethical social climate. The book is of interest to social scientists, ethicists, behavioral scientists, educators, theologians and moral philosophers. In the end this case study of South Africa shows us more broadly how maintaining public morality and social cohesion is a challenge that most modern societies face.
