

Chapter 6 Study Guide

1) Define memory and describe the 4 types of memory.

Memory is the capacity to store and retrieve information. Memory allows you to have conscious access to the past.

- Implicit Memory: becomes available without conscious effort, (ex: what should & should not be in a room).
- Explicit Memory: makes a conscious effort to recover information, (ex: the names of objects in a room).
- Declarative Memory: memory of facts and events, (ex: answers on your midterm).
- Procedural Memory: memory for how to do things, (ex: how to drive a car).

2) Explain the memory process.

- Encoding: processing of information that leads to representation in memory. Requires that you form mental representations to preserve the most important features of past experiences.
- Storage: the retention over time of encoded information. Can be short-term & long-term.
- Retrieval: the recovery of stored information at a later time.

3) Describe sensory memory.

The initial processes involved in the momentary preservation of fleeting impressions of sensory stimuli. Your sensory memories are durable enough to give you a sense of continuity, but not strong enough to interfere with new sensory impressions.

4) Describe short-term and working memory.

- Short-term memory: Associated with briefly holding on to recent experiences and with the retrieval of information from Long-Term Memory. Has a limited capacity $\sim 7 \pm 2$. Rehearsal (repetition of information) and chunking (grouping of information) can help keep the information in the STM.
- Working memory: is the memory resource used to accomplish tasks such as reasoning and language comprehension. It serves as a bridge for information coming and going to and from Long-Term memory.

5) Identify and describe the 3 components of working memory.

- Phonological Loop: holds and manipulates speech-based information.
- Visuospatial Sketchpad: manipulates visual and spatial information.
- Central Executive: directs attention, initiates decisions, and handles the essential task of learning, comprehending, reasoning, and language.

6) Summarize long-term memory, including a discussion of encoding in long-term memory.

Often retained over a lifetime and accessible over our entire lives. Constitutes an individual's total knowledge of the world and the self. Has no limit.

- The serial position effect: the first and last items in a series will be remembered

The Final Exodus: Deciphering the Book of Revelation Christine Paxson, Rose Spiller, 2022-09-01 What is it about the Book of Revelation Some treat it like a futuristic comic book Some consider it is too complex to try to understand Some worry about getting the interpretation wrong or worse on getting it right Some read it trying to break the code as if John wrote the book in a secret code expecting Christians to try and crack it And then there are those who are terrified of the book and the images so they just avoid it altogether For them ignorance is bliss The Final Exodus is a theologically sound scriptural approach to the Book of Revelation Authors and podcasters Christine Paxson and Rose Spiller examine questions such as Where have we seen this before Is this passage meant to be taken literally symbolically or metaphorically Has this passage already been interpreted somewhere else in Scripture Does our conclusion of the passage line up with everything else in the Bible Is this passage telling us something new or is it a picture of something already seen in the Old Testament or in other parts of the New Testament Using the same careful and systematic exegesis that should be used for interpreting all books of the Bible The Final Exodus brings clarity and understanding to a book that is often misinterpreted in chaotic and irresponsible ways
