Entrepreneurship Higher Education in Europe Angelo Riviezzo,Alessandro De Nisco,Maria Rosaria Napolitano,2012-11-13 Document from the year 2012 in the subject Business economics Offline Marketing and Online

Marketing University of Sannio course Entrepreneurship Marketing language English abstract Europe aspires to increase its share of the international students market in which the number of internationally mobile students is predicted to rise to 7.2 million by 2025. Entrepreneurship as a relative recent and potentially high attractive field of study could represent a strategic subject to enhance the attractiveness of European higher education especially towards those students coming from countries where entrepreneurship education is less developed. Starting from the above considerations this book aims a) to present an extensive picture of entrepreneurship higher education in Europe b) to analyze perceptions and intentions of potential target groups i.e. foreign students c) to design a suitable marketing strategy to improve the European entrepreneurship higher education offer and its share in the international students market as a result of the previous analyses. To this aim two different surveys have been managed. On one side primary data have been collected on the presence of entrepreneurship education activities from the undergraduate to the post graduate courses within the universities of all the 27 European Union member States. On the other side the real interest in pursuing some educational activities in Europe especially related to entrepreneurship has been assessed among students from extra European universities. In particular the same questionnaire has been submitted to a sample of students at higher education level in India, Singapore, China, Russia, Argentina, Brazil and Turkey. Finally as a result of the two surveys a strategic marketing framework has been developed through the definition of products and segments i.e. product portfolio of the European education offer and emerging segments in third countries and the identification of market opportunities in order to define attractive educational products. The results discussed in this book are a significant part of the research activity carried out within the three years project ENDEAVOUR: Entrepreneurial Development as a Vehicle to Promote European Higher Education co-financed by the Erasmus Mundus Programme in 2006.

Construction Labor Report, 2009 Strategic Issues Facing Transportation Johanna Zmud, 2014. Major trends affecting the future of the United States and the world will dramatically reshape transportation priorities and needs. The American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials established the NCHRP Project 20-83 research series to examine global and domestic long range strategic issues and their implications for departments of transportation (DOTs) to help prepare the DOTs for the challenges and benefits created by these trends. This publication is the sixth report in this series. This report presents the results of research on how socio-demographic changes over the next 30 to 50 years will impact travel demand at the regional level. The research approach involved identifying a number of plausible future scenarios and development of a systems dynamic model that simulates the demographic evolution of a regional population starting from a baseline of the 2000 census and spanning a period of 50 years. The four future scenarios were developed using a Strategic Assumptions Surfacing and Testing (SAST) technique and include the following: 1. Momentum: gradual change without radical shifts; 2. Technology Triumphs: technology solves many present day problems; 3. Global Chaos: a collapse in globalism and sustainability; and 4. Gentle Footprint: a widespread shift to low impact living. The model does not predict which scenario is most likely instead it predicts how travel demand will change under each of the five sectors socio demographics travel behavior land use employment and transportation supply The accompanying CD CRP CD 152 contains the Impacts 2050 software tool the user s guide a PowerPoint presentation about the research and the research brief The Impacts 2050 tool enables modeling of changes in these sectors due to socio demographic changes the interplay between sectors and external factors such as attitudes and technology This report will help transportation decision makers understand how the population may change over time how socio demographic changes will affect the ways people travel and the kinds of transportation modes and infrastructure that will be needed Foreword Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter and New York Druggists'
