Section Summary

Throughout the 1930s, dictators took aggressive action. Yet, they met only verbal protests and pleas for peace from Western powers. For example, when the League of Nations condemned Japan's invasion of Manchuria in 1931, Japan simply withdrew from the League. A few years later, Japanese armies invaded China, starting the Second Sino-Japanese War. Eventually, the United States entered China in 1935. The League of Nations voted sanctions against Italy, but the League had no power to enforce its punishment of Italy's actions. Hitler, too, defied the Western democracies by building up the German military and ending treaties left a the "demilitarized" Rhineland. This went against the Treaty of Versailles. The Western democracies disavowed Hitler but adopted a policy of appeasement, appeasement developed for a number of reasons, including widespread pacifism. The United States responded with a series of Neutrality Acts. The goal was to avoid involvement in a war, rather than its prevention. While the Western democracies sought to restrain Germany, Italy, and Japan formed an alliance. It became known as the Axi powers.

In Spain, a new, more liberal government passed reforms that upset conservatives. General Francisco Franco, who was opposed to the new government, started a civil war. Hitler and Mussolini supported Franco, their fellow fascists. The Soviet Union sent troops to support the anti-fascists, or Loyalists. The governments of Britain, France, and the United States remained neutral, although individuals from these countries fought with the Loyalists. By 1939, Franco had not stopped.

German aggression continued. In 1938, Hitler forced the Czechs, or even with Austria. Next, Hitler set his sights on the Sudetenland. This was a part of Czechoslovakia where most of the Germans lived. At the Munich Conference, which was held to discuss the situation, British and French leaders chose appeasement and allowed Hitler to annex the territory.

In March 1939, Hitler took over the rest of Czechoslovakia. Months later, Hitler and Stalin signed the Nazi-Soviet Pact. They agreed not to fight if the other went to war. This paved the way for Germany's invasion of Poland in September of 1939, which set off World War II.
