

14 THE DIGESTIVE SYSTEM AND BODY METABOLISM

The digestive system processes food so that it can be absorbed and used by the body's cells. The digestive organs are responsible for food ingestion, digestion, absorption, and elimination of undigested remains from the body. In one sense, the digestive tract can be viewed as a disassembly line in which food is carried from one stage of its breakdown process to the next by muscular activity, and its nutrients are made available en route to the cells of the body. In addition, the digestive system provides for one of life's greatest pleasures—eating.

The anatomy of both alimentary canal and accessory digestive organs, mechanical and enzymatic breakdown, and absorption mechanisms are covered in this chapter. An introduction to nutrition and some important understandings about cellular metabolism (utilization of foodstuffs by body cells) are also considered in this chapter review.

ANATOMY OF THE DIGESTIVE SYSTEM

1. Complete the following statements by inserting your answers in the answer blanks.

1. Oral Cavity
2. Digestion
3. Blood
4. Eliminated or excreted
5. Feces
6. GI Tract
7. Accessory

The digestive system is responsible for many body processes. Its functions begin when food is taken into the mouth, or (1). The process called (2) occurs as food is broken down both chemically and mechanically. For the broken-down foods to be made available to the body cells, they must be absorbed through the digestive system walls into the (3). Undigestible food remains are removed, or (4), from the body in (5). The organs forming a continuous tube from the mouth to the anus are collectively called the (6). Organs located outside the digestive tract proper, which secrete their products into the digestive tract, are referred to as (7) digestive system organs.
