

Chapter 22- World War II (1931-1945)

Section 1- Failure of a Lasting Peace

In the 1920s and 1930s many nations were hit by political and financial problems created by World War I that led to Benito Mussolini becoming the dictator of Italy in 1925, Adolf Hitler becoming the dictator of Germany in 1933, and Japan becoming openly aggressive in 1931 against China. The U.S. didn't like what was happening around the world but was still an isolationist (a country that keeps to themselves and stays out of world affairs) nation. To stay neutral, she passed neutrality acts (laws against getting involved with any nation at war) in the 1930s.

A civil war (a war within a country between its own people) in Spain in the late 1930s involved Germany and Italy and was the prelude to World War II. In 1935 Italy invaded Ethiopia (very poor country on the eastern coast of Africa) and no countries protested. Hitler learned from Italy's action that no one would stand in Germany's way if Germany wanted more land. In 1936 Germany started taking over new lands, no one stopped her, and on September 1, 1939 she invaded Poland (country in Europe between Germany and Russia) and started World War II.

By that late date Britain and France realized that Germany would not be stopped with anything except armed force. Germany and Italy were the Axis Powers and Britain and France were the Allied Powers. By late 1940 Germany had overrun all of Europe and Japan had increased her war in China which she attacked in 1937. The Axis' actions worried the U.S. and made her realize that she no longer could remain neutral. In 1940 the U.S. repealed (took away) her neutrality acts, started arming herself, started drafting (to bring someone into the military without them volunteering) soldiers, and began changing her industry over to war production.

By mid 1941, Germany had given up trying to bomb Britain (called the Battle of Britain) into surrendering and instead invaded the Soviet Union (the name of Russia while it was communist from 1917-1991) in June of 1941. By June of 1941 America had set up a "cash and carry" (system by which a country can help other countries by allowing other countries to pay cash for goods and carry the goods away on their own; meant to keep the "helping" country from being attacked while helping) and "lend-lease plan" (system by which a country can help other countries by lending or leasing goods to other countries that do not have cash or transportation to carry away purchased goods) that allowed the Allied Powers to use American goods to fight the Axis Powers. When America became involved in selling her goods to the Allies German U-boats (submarines) started sinking U.S. ships in the Atlantic. The U.S. then started to arm her ships in the Atlantic to protect them from the Germans. An "undeclared war" (a war that exists, just not officially) existed from mid 1941 on between Germany and the U.S.

By mid 1941 Japan had joined the Axis and had further increased her war in China. America disliked Japan's actions and stopped selling goods, such as metal and oil, to her. The U.S. thought that Japan would have to stop her war in China since Japan relied on American metal and oil. Instead of stopping their attacks, Japan attacked the U.S. Pacific Fleet at Pearl Harbor (America's main naval base in the Pacific Ocean) in Hawaii on December 7, 1941 at 7:55am. Japan wanted to cripple the U.S. fleet so she could expand further to get her own supply of metal and oil in Asia. The U.S. declared war on Japan on Dec. 8.

Section 2- The United States and World War II: 1941-1945

On Dec. 11 Germany and Italy declared war on America so the U.S. declared war on them. The war against Germany, Italy, and Japan was a total war effort by the U.S. Their war industry went on 24hrs a day, 7 days a week and the U.S. produced more of everything than every other nation at war combined.

It was decided that Germany was the strongest of the 3 Axis Powers so she would have to be defeated first while stalling the others. American General Dwight D. Eisenhower was the Supreme Allied Commander in Europe against Germany. The first step to beat Germany was to take control of the Atlantic from the German U-Boats (called the Battle of the Atlantic). This was done by mid 1943. The second step was to soften Germany up in the south, in Italy and North Africa (northern desert part of the continent of Africa). This was done by Sept. of 1943. The invasion of North Africa in 1942 was the turning point of the war against Germany. The Allies invaded Italy in Sept. of 1943 forcing Italy to surrender. The last step was to invade Germany and destroy her this phase began on June 6, 1944 at the Normandy (northern part of France directly across from
