

Gravitational Physics (PHYS 3002): Gravitational acceleration

Note that Newton almost thought of the gravitational force as exerted not just by the planet you're standing on, usually the Earth, but gravity is a force exerted by all objects, which means that you too will also Earth, in this rather "not say" that the gravitational force is calculated as this $G M m / r^2$ not just Earth alone which influences the magnitude of the gravitational force.

Newton's law of universal gravitation

All masses in the universe are attracted to each other by a gravitational force, called F_g , which depends on the masses and the distance between the masses. Newton's law of universal gravitation states that the magnitude of the gravitational force is proportional to the product of the masses and inversely proportional to the square of the distance of

The gravitational force between the two masses is always attractive, just like this:

The magnitude of the gravitational force F_g between two masses is directly proportional to the product of the masses m_1 and m_2 and inversely proportional to the square of the distance of separation r between the masses. This relationship is summarized by the equation:

$$F_g = G \frac{m_1 m_2}{r^2}$$

G is a constant of proportionality called the universal gravitational constant, equal to $6.67 \times 10^{-11} \text{ N m}^2/\text{kg}^2$. This equation is known as Newton's law of universal gravitation. It can also be written by this being measured when you're standing on Earth's surface:

1. The magnitude of the force F_g exerted by the Earth on a mass m is given by the equation:

2. The magnitude of the force F_g exerted by the Earth on a mass m is given by the equation:

3. The magnitude of the force F_g exerted by the Earth on a mass m is given by the equation:

4. The magnitude of the force F_g exerted by the Earth on a mass m is given by the equation:
