

At the top of page two, police will document any property that was damaged during the crash. This will include the property owner's name and address, as well as a description of the damage.

In the second section of page two, police will document certain details in number and letter codes. These details include:

- The seating position of each vehicle occupant
- Any safety equipment used at the time of the crash (seat belts, child restraints, etc.)
- Whether or not an airbag deployed in the crash
- If anyone was fully or partially ejected from the vehicle
- Inattention that likely contributed to or caused the crash
- Factors that contributed to the crash (weather, lighting, and road surface and conditions)
- Traffic control devices
- Type of crash
- Types of vehicles, objects and parties involved in the crash
- Pedestrian actions at the time of the crash (if a pedestrian was involved)
- Vehicle movement that occurred prior to the crash
- If a drunk or drugged driver was involved in the crash

The bottom section of the report will include a brief sketch of how the crash occurred.

The image shows a California Traffic Collision Coding form, which is a standardized document used by law enforcement to record details of a traffic collision. The form is divided into several sections:

- PROPERTY DAMAGE: A section at the top left for recording damage to property, including the owner's name and address.
- SEATING POSITION: A section with a diagram of a vehicle interior and codes for the seating position of each occupant.
- SAFETY EQUIPMENT: A section with codes for safety equipment used, such as seat belts, child restraints, and air bags.
- AIR BAGS: A section with codes for air bags deployed in the vehicle.
- INATTENTION CODES: A section with codes for factors that contributed to the crash, such as driver inattention, weather, lighting, and road surface conditions.
- VEHICLE AND DRIVER INFORMATION: A large section with multiple columns for recording details about the vehicles involved, the drivers, and the circumstances of the crash. This section includes codes for vehicle type, driver age, driver license status, and driver actions.

The form is designed to be filled out by a police officer or other authorized personnel at the scene of a collision. It provides a structured way to collect and record information that is critical for understanding the causes of a crash and for determining liability.
