

Chapter 5

Cost Behavior: Analysis and Use

Solutions to Questions

5-1

- Variable cost: A variable cost remains constant on a per unit basis, but changes in total in direct relation to changes in volume.
- Fixed cost: A fixed cost remains constant in total amount, but changes, if expressed on a per unit basis, inversely with changes in volume.
- Mixed cost: A mixed cost contains both variable and fixed cost elements.

5-2

- Unit fixed costs decrease as volume increases.
- Unit variable costs remain constant as volume increases.
- Total fixed costs remain constant as volume increases.
- Total variable costs increase as volume increases.

5-3

- Cost behavior: Cost behavior refers to the way in which costs change in response to changes in a measure of activity such as sales volume, production volume, or orders processed.
- Relevant range: The relevant range is the range of activity within which assumptions about variable and fixed cost behavior are valid.

5-4 An activity base is a measure of whatever causes the incurrence of a variable cost. Examples of activity bases include units produced, units sold, letters typed, beds in a hospital, meals served in a cafe, service calls made, etc.

5-5

- Variable cost: A variable cost remains constant on a per unit basis, but increases or decreases in total in direct relation to changes in activity.

- Mixed cost: A mixed cost is a cost that contains both variable and fixed cost elements.
- Step-variable cost: A step-variable cost is a cost that is incurred in large chunks, and which increases or decreases only in response to fairly wide changes in activity.

5-6 The linear assumption is reasonably valid providing that the cost formula is used only within the relevant range.

5-7 A discretionary fixed cost has a fairly short planning horizon—usually a year. Such costs arise from annual decisions by management to spend in certain fixed cost areas, such as advertising, research, and management development. A committed fixed cost has a long planning horizon—generally many years. Such costs relate to a company's investment in facilities, equipment, and basic organization. Once such costs have been incurred, a company becomes "locked in" for many years.
