Work and Energy

1. How much work (energy) is needed to lift an object that weighs 200 N to a height of 4 m?

2. How much power is supplied to lift the 200-N object to a height of 4 m in 4 s?

3. What is the power output of an engine that does 60,000 J of work in 10 s?

4. The block of ice weighs 500 newtons.

a. What is the mechanical advantage of the incline?

b. How much force is needed to push it up the incline (neglect friction)?

5. All the ramps are 5 m high. We know that the KE of the block at the bottom of the ramp will be equal to the loss of PE (conservation of energy). Find the speed of the block at ground level in each case. (Note: Do you recall from earlier chapters how long it takes something to fall a vertical distance of 5 m from a position of rest (assume $g = 10 \text{ m/s}^2$)? And how much speed a falling object acquires in this time? This gives you the answer to Case 1. Discuss with your classmates how energy conservation gives you the answers to Cases 2 and 3.)

Case 1: Speed = _____ m/s

Case 2: Speed = _____ m/s

Case 3: Speed = _____ m/s

Nursing Afaf Ibrahim Meleis,2011 An additional assumption was that the processes for theory development were new to nursing and hence nurses in graduate programs learned strategies for advancing knowledge from other disciplines This assumption was debunked with the knowledge that nurses were always engaged in knowledge development driven by their experiences in clinical practice Because of these assumptions most of the early writing about theory development was about outlining strategies that should be used rather than strategies that have already been used in the discipline to develop theories Theorists themselves did not uncover or adequately discuss ways by which they developed their theories therefore the tendency was to describe processes that were based on theories developed in other disciplines mainly the physical and social sciences And an implicit assumption was made that there should be a single strategy for theory development some claiming to begin the process from practice and others believing it should be driven by research Provided by publisher
