

Nursing 467 Pneumonia – COPD Case Study

I. Developing Nurse Thinking by Identifying Clinical Relevance/Significance

History of Present Problem:

Joan Walker is an 84-year-old female who has had a productive cough of green phlegm that started four days ago that persists. She was started three days ago on prednisone 40 mg PO daily and azithromycin (Zithromax) 250 mg PO x5 days by her clinic physician. Though she has had intermittent chills, she had a fever last night of 102.0 F/38.9 C. She has had more difficulty breathing during the night and has been using her albuterol inhaler every 1-2 hours with no improvement so she called 9-1-1 and was brought to the emergency department (ED) where you are the nurse who will be responsible for her care.

Personal/Social History:

Joan was widowed six months ago after 64 years of marriage and resides in assisted living. She is a retired elementary school teacher. She called her pastor before coming to the ED and he has now arrived and came back with the patient. The nurse walked in the room when the pastor asked Joan if she would like to pray. The patient said to her pastor, "Yes please, I feel that this may be the beginning of the end for me!"

What data from the histories is important & RELEVANT; therefore, it has clinical significance to the nurse?

RELEVANT Data from Present Problem:	Clinical Significance:
Productive cough with green phlegm Fever 102.0 F Difficulty breathing – no relief from albuterol	Fever and productive cough can signify an infection, impaired airway can be a factor also
RELEVANT Data from Social History:	Clinical Significance:
Recently widowed Thoughts of death being near	Anxiety producing thoughts that may alter her care. Need to consider these thoughts, her age, and if her pastor is her only support right now.
