Transportation and Information Piyushimita (Vonu)

Thakuria, D. Glenn Geers, 2013-06-18 Transformations in wireless connectivity and location aware technologies hold the promise of bringing a sea change in the way transportation information is generated and used in the future. Sensors in the transportation system when integrated with those in other sectors for example energy utility and health have the potential to foster novel new ways of improving livability and sustainability. The end result of these developments has been somewhat contradictory. Although automation in the transportation environment has become increasingly widespread, the level of involvement and active participation by people in terms of co creation and contribution of information has also increased. As a result, the following two major trends have been observed: 1. increases in Machine to Machine (M2M) communications and 2. increases in the variety and volume of User Generated Content. In this transportation paradigm, the pervasive use of Information and Communication Technologies will serve as the foundation for mobility intelligence towards an ubiquitous information centered mobility environment. However, many technical and operational questions as well as social management and legal challenges present themselves in the transformation to this vision. The book presents a non technical review of research and initiatives and a discussion of such opportunities and challenges. Kiplinger's Personal Finance, 2010

You'll read how General Motors and OnStar hit the jackpot by examining something that wasn't there. You'll find in depth interviews with GE's Mark Vachon, IndieGoGo's Danae Ringelmann, P.F.
