Processing Times And Usability Of Manual Defibrillators Maria Gu00f6ttler, 2017 Background Manual Defibrillators underwent a rapid technical progress The accurate use of a manual defibrillator can prevent a delay in starting CPR and reduce interruptions of chest compressions In order to obtain an objective evaluation of a device's usability eye tracking measurements have recently become a promising method Eye tracking can expose cognitive processes and visual attention during problem solving tasks which is an important part of understanding human reasoning It was the aim of this study to evaluate the usability of modern manual defibrillators from 4 different manufacturers We requested a series of tasks representing typical operator device interactions during a cardiac arrest scenario Successful task execution and processing times were measured Additionally while the operators were performing the tasks their visual focuses were assessed via mobile eye tracking Thereafter their subjective perception of usability was evaluated by a standardized usability questionnaire The hypothesis of our study was that the usability of manual defibrillators differs between the devices according to the requested task

Methods After informed consent ERB of the University of Freiburg 43 voluntary operators were asked to execute 15 tasks representing typical operating steps during acute defibrillation cardioversion or pace maker stimulation see Y axis Figure 2 at 4 different defibrillators LifepakTM 20 Physio Control Inc USA Defigard Touch 7TM Schiller Switzerland Corpuls 3TM GS Germany and X SeriesTM ALS Zoll Chelmsford USA Fig 1 Operators were naïve to the included devices The operators' 2019 gazes were measured via an eye tracking device Tobii Pro Glasses 2 Tobii AB Sweden From these data task's 2019s processing time TD and the operator's 2019s gaze distribution Heat Map were analysed After having executed the task the operators' 2019 evaluated the usability via a standardized questionnaire The primary endpoint was TD Secondary endpoints included gaze distribution and usability score data given as mean ± 1SD

Gerrit Jan Noordergraaf,2017 Introduction Hospitals are bound to provide a safe environment Early defibrillation is a key factor in this respect Outside in hospital high risk areas the use of defibrillators is infrequent However even when rapid response teams RRT bring their own equipment the benefit from early shocks strongly suggest their immediate availability Currently there are no guidelines as to choice placement strategies or types level of defibrillators for in hospital settings despite investment costs Purpose Development of rational criteria for type and placement of defibrillators for in hospital settings Methods Literature research concerning the deployment of defibrillators in hospitals We selected all hospitals and manufacturers in the Netherlands using a standardized questionnaire enquired as to their defibrillator investment and placement strategies Using the literature and level of competence legislation we merged this into criteria for type and placement Results We were unable to find validated arguments supporting type placement of defibrillator AED vs manual with a wide range of devices to patient ratios Guidelines support deployment of a defibrillator anywhere in the hospital within 3 minutes All respondents noted low incidence of use coupled with a low sensitivity to costs We found that nurses prefer u2018realu2019 AEDu2019s over manual defibrillators with an AED function Rational choice criteria were a population in vs out of hospital b potential for collapse c user competence d arrival time RRT e time to retrieve f positioning same level within reasonable distance visibility g u2018combination with everything neededu2019 crash cart Conclusions A wide range of variation in placement strategies and type of defibrillators for the in hospital setting in the Netherlands Cost effective placement of defibrillators support use of AEDu2019s over manual defibrillators in RRT based systems even though they may have negative effects Potential users influence type placement strategies Some rational criteria allow for suitable and safe strategies CPR with AED Provider Manual Max Groenhart,2010 Instructor Guide: Defibrillation, a Manual for the EMT Linda Bunting-Blake,Joan Parker,Al Weigel,1985 HeartStart Onsite M5066A Automated External Defibrillator Philips Medical Systems Nederland,2005 Manual for a device manufactured by Philips Medical Systems is a guide to set up operation maintenance and accessories Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) with Automated External Defibrillator (AED) Anthony J.
