question

1. Answer question 1 on page 188 of your textbook.

Answer:

Distinguish between primary and secondary visual and auditory pathways and their functions.

Primary visual pathways begin and end in the visual cortex. They are responsible for the initial processing of visual information, including the detection of light and dark.

Secondary visual pathways begin and end in the visual cortex. They are responsible for the processing of visual information that is not processed by the primary visual pathways.

question

2. Answer question 2 on page 188 of the textbook.

Answer:

Describe the process of transduction in the visual system.

Transduction is the process by which the visual system converts light energy into neural signals. This process occurs in the retina, where light enters the eye and is focused on the photoreceptors.

The photoreceptors then convert the light energy into electrical signals, which are then transmitted to the brain via the optic nerve.
