

Chapter 2: Research Design

Introduction

A research design provides a guideline for collection, analysis and interpretation of data. A research method is a way for collecting data.

Criteria in Business Research

There are three most important criteria for the evaluation of business and management research. They are: reliability, replication and validity.

Reliability reflects a question of whether the results of a certain study are repeatable. After all, if different researchers would finish the same experiment with different outcomes, it would be a question who of them was right and who made a mistake in his research. A reliable research is that one which outcome is the same every time whoever the researcher is.

Sometimes researchers replicate the findings of others for different reasons. Therefore, studies must be replicable. The reason is straightforward - if a researcher does not describe his outcomes in details, it will be impossible for other experimenters to interpret the results.

Validity is concerned with the integrity of conclusions of a research. In other words, it examines whether the research is conducted in a right way. Scientists distinguish four types of validity.

Measurement validity (or construct validity). This type of validity deals mainly with quantitative research. It is concerned with a question whether the measurement really reflects the measuring variable. If it does not, then both validity and reliability are questionable.

Internal validity. This type of validity deals with the question whether a conclusion that incorporates relationship between two variables really works. If we suggest that certain independent variable causes variation in dependent variable, we must be sure that this is true and not other factor is the reason for this variation.

External validity. It concerns with a question of whether the results of an experiment also work beyond specific research context.

Ecological validity. This last type of validity checks that scientific findings also work in everyday life. For example, if an experiment is made in a laboratory or in a special room, there is a great probability that findings will be ecologically invalid.

A variable is an attribute on which cases vary. If an attribute does not vary, we say that it is constant. Constant attributes are of less interest to the researchers than variables. Two most common types of variables are independent and dependent variables.

There are four aspects of trustworthiness that are parallel to some quantitative research criteria described before:

- Credibility (parallel to internal validity) - the extent to which findings are believable.
- Transferability (parallel to external validity) - question whether findings in particular research apply to other contexts.
- Dependability (parallel to reliability) - concerns with a question whether findings also apply in other studies.
- Confirmability (parallel to objectivity) - deals with the problem whether researcher's values and views interfered experiment to a high degree.

Naturalism has many different meanings; the most common ones are the following. Naturalism (1) means a commitment to adopting the ideology of natural science methods; (2) means being average economic growth. Consequently the rising electricity demand can only be satisfied by continuously growing electricity imports and thus creating a significant burden to Thailand's national budget. Further more Thailand is heavily dependent on natural gas reserves for electricity generation however these are expected to be depleted within only three decades and global price levels for conventional fuels are increasingly volatile with an ascending tendency as well. Therefore Thailand faces an urgent need to strategically plan for the broad utilization of domestic renewable energy resources which is essential for a more diversified and thus sustainable electricity generation as well as for the nation's endeavor to become an energy hub within the South East Asian region. Under these circumstances this research conducts a comprehensive literature review regarding the past development as well as the current situation of renewable energy utilization in Thailand which concludes in the identification of the importance of renewable energy in the given context and closes with both a distinctive need assessment and a conceptual framework for Thailand's future renewable energy strategy. Subsequently the research introduces a unique primary research endeavor in the form of an explorative expert interview survey which succeeds in a substantial collection of qualitative and in depth data. These valuable data is first objectively analyzed and second subjectively interpreted and summarized to become the major source for the derivation of a multitude of potential strategic recommendations for an enhanced future renewable energy utilization development in Thailand. Finally the entirety of these recommended strategic approaches based on both the secondary and primary research are assembled to develop the Enhanced Renewable Energy Utilization (EREU) model for electricity generation in Thailand as the fundamental finding of this thesis and research project respectively.

Research Methods Michael Passer, 2020-12-22. With over two decades of classroom experience Michael Passer knows how to guide students through the ins and outs of research methods. In this remarkable text Passer's experience leads to chapters filled with clear explanations, resonant examples and contemporary research from across the breadth of modern psychology all while anticipating common questions and misunderstandings.

Selltiz, Wrightsman, and Cook's Research Methods in Social Relations Louise H. Kidder, 1981. In this book four modes of designing research experiments, quasi experiments, surveys and participant observation are introduced. Each is useful in a different setting and is best suited to answer a different type of question. Experiments are designed to answer questions about causes and effects. They require the experimenter to exercise control over what happens to whom. Experimenters randomly assign people or other units such as classes of students to different conditions and measure the effects of the treatment.

Research Methods in Education and Psychology Donna M. Mertens, 1998. It not only covers two of the standard paradigms, postpositivist and interpretive constructivist, but discusses a relative newcomer, the emancipatory paradigm, that is inclusive of the perspectives of feminists, ethnic racial minorities and persons with disabilities. In each chapter Donna M. Mertens carefully explains a step of the research process from the literature review to types of research method to analysis and reporting of quantitative or qualitative approaches.
