Lesson # 1

Student Objectives:
F.15.1 and 15.2

F.15.1 The student knows the nature of forces in the physical world. The student is expected to:
F.15.2 Characterize materials as conductors or insulators based on their electrical properties.
F.15.3 Design, construct, and calculate in terms of current through, potential difference across, resistance of, and power used by electric circuit elements connected in both series and parallel combinations.

Substandard/Topic Covered (Why for this activity)

Key
Understandings

Currents describe the flow of electrons.
By convention, currents carried in the direction in which a positive test charge moves.
An electrical circuit transforms electrical energy into thermal or mechanical energy.
Resistors can be combined in different ways to make a series or parallel circuit.
In a series circuit, the charge travels along one path.
In a parallel circuit, the charge is shared into two or more paths. Most circuits are a combination of parallel circuits.
It is important to understand the characteristics, values, and placement of electrical elements and high voltage areas to perform safe equipment.

Misconceptions

Students confuse voltage and current with the electric charges that are moving.
Students may think current flows around a complete circuit and is used by objects like light bulbs, so that current returns then returns the source of the electricity.
Changing the order of resistors in a series circuit does not affect the behavior of the circuit.
Students may think that current flows from a battery to a light bulb, but not from the light bulb to the battery.
