Origins of the Constitution- ( Describe the ideas behind the American Revolution and their role in shaping the constitution.)

Ideas behind the American Revolution: One of the major ideas that spread was the thought of independence. This idea later brought along the all known Declaration of Independence. Another idea was natural rights which was invented by John Locke. This led to a big part of freedom that is referenced in the Constitution.

The Government That Failed: 1776-1787- ( Analyze how the weaknesses of the Articles of Confederation led to its failure.)

One of the weaknesses that really stands out from the rest is that it was literally made to be weak. The founding fathers presumed that if they made it too strong that the government would be able to take over the people.

Making a Constitution: The Philadelphia Convention- (Describe the delegates to the Constitutional Convention and the core ideas they shared.)

The delegates were made up of 55 men with independent wealth, most were college graduates. They all rightfully share the same idea in "revising the Articles of Confederation". This "rewrite" later came to be known as the U.S Constitution.

Critical Issues at the Convention- (Categorize the issues at the constitutional Convention and outline the resolutions reached on each type of issue.)

Issue#1: Equality- The Constitution does not say much on equality which meant people thought unequal rights, such as slavery, is alright which was a problem. A couple ways they tried to fix this was the New Jersey Plan and the Virginia Plan. Both in all called for equal representation in congress. Another way was the three-fifths compromise, where  $\frac{3}{5}$  of slaves should be counted on to vote and have an opinion (which is still not fair).

Issue#2 Economy- Inflation in its prime paper money was pretty much worthless. So what does the government do? taxes? Well... not exactly seeing the government could not charge taxes because no one would have been able to pay them. They instead paid off their national debt which flowed right back into the economy.
