Christian camping is more than a nice but superfluous add-on to our spiritual lives. God designed the core elements of time away with others in creation to nurture our relationship with Him. The Bible provides the blueprints for camps, retreats, conferences, and adventure ministries. We need to build effective programs. And God's word explains why each of us will benefit from outdoor ministries. God commanded the Children of Israel to meet with Him three times each year. These national festivals included five central elements: change of location, extended time away, interaction with family and friends, engagement with creation, and refocusing on God. New surroundings provide fresh vantage points from which to evaluate our lives. Everyone needs time away to escape the pressures and routines of life. We long for opportunities to reconnect with those we love. The more urbanized we become, the more we need immersion into God's creation to hear his voice and be amazed by his glory. Times of intentional spiritual focus are crucial as we seek to know, love, worship, and serve God. Today, during this era of urbanization and intensity, we need moments of refreshment and renewal more than ever. A United Church Camp Study, 1979. Creative Church Camping, 1971. Church Camp Elizabeth M.
