MING DYNASTY ELEGANCE

Taking inspiration from the minimalism and elegance of the Ming Dynasty furniture displayed in Beijing's Palace Museum, Forbidden City recreates classic pieces for contemporary living. Furniture at Forbidden City exhibits skilled craftsmanship; each hardwood component is varnished with a natural lacquer to a finish fit for an emperor. The process of building each individual piece of furniture involves eighty different stages and takes fifty to sixty days to complete. Such considerate workmanship is what creates the smooth surfaces and fine details of the wooden chairs, tables and cabinets. The use of hardwood and lacquer produces durable pieces, intended to last for generations. Eye-catching models include the tray boxes with stands, the Song Dynasty-style Grand Tutor chair and Happiness Shelf, which represents the Chinese characters for double happiness.
