Brussels T. J. Demos, Hilde van Gelder, 2012 While each is a singular film together they reveal Africa's postcolonial imaginary to be a zone of crisis situated between humanitarian emergency financial pillage and the politics of memory on the one hand and the fictional but nonetheless consequential construction of European identity on the other Just as dominant neocolonial narratives which all too often cover over movements for independence and social justice are critically played out and contested in these works so too are documentary conventions creatively reinvented by Asselberghs Augustijnen Martens and Opsomer The resulting moving images emerge as a complex site of postcolonial haunting self reflexive performativity researched analysis archival reordering and post documentary cinematic affect Nature Sir Norman Lockyer, 1882

Scholars and Their Kin Stéphane Gerson, 2025-02-19 Spotlights historians who have embraced the methodological practical and ethical challenges of writing about the most slippery of subjects their own families Historians have often been discouraged from writing about their relatives subjects who are deemed too close for objective analysis But new work by scholars interested in their own families raises fascinating questions about subjectivity and how historians might put it to use It also invites historians to abandon traditional aspects of academic writing and draw instead on literary forms more equipped to highlight the relationships between scholar and material feeling and reason Scholars and Their Kin embraces diverse approaches to such writing bringing into the open the personal professional and historiographic complexities that ensue when scholars write intimate yet self aware histories about their families The first book devoted to this genre which editor Stéphane Gerson terms personal family history this anthology features ten essays and an afterword by scholars working in this vein The contributors varied in their disciplines themes and nationalities reflect on their motivations and methodological choices the politics of family history and the institutional constraints they have sometimes faced Making full use of the creative possibilities of voice and form they expand the literary ambitions of personal family history provide readers with narrative models and address questions of shame responsibility love gendered and racial violence family archives as well as the tall tales myths misrepresentations memories and omissions that suffuse family lives Scholars and Their Kin will interest historians scholars in other disciplines and readers interested in family histories that open broader worlds
