Opening Case

In the Pit

This case profiles the Toronto Symphony Orchestra (TSO), and chronicles the significant changes it has encountered recently in its fight for survival. Many internal and external forces for change are at work in this situation. The orchestra appears to have been through the unfreezing stage and the change stage. One of the big changes is the new CEO. Now the TSO is headed for the refreezing stage. The new CEO seems to be fully aware of the difficulties that lie ahead and appears to anticipate the need to deal with resistance to the changes. Given its 'near-death' experience, all stakeholders will be watching Andrew Shaw as he guides the TSO into the next stage of its history.

Observable artifacts consist of the physical manifestations of an organization's culture such as dress, myths and stories. You might spend some time on the terrible incident at Sitel Canada provided in the text.
